FURTHER FALL NOTED IN YANGTZE TENSION RELAXES IN FLOOD AREAS RELIEF WORKERS BUSY

Hankow, Yesterday.
The anxiety of the past few weeks is subsiding with a further fall in the Yangtze, together with lower watermarks up-river. The Hankow watermark this morning was at 49.7.

It is understood that the Customs have despatched two launches with supplies of medicines and food for the relief of the unfortunate people in the flooded areas above Hankow.—

HELLDORF AS POLICE PRESIDENT

COUP WITHIN THE NAZI PARTY BY RADICALS HITLER SANCTION IN DOUBT

London, Yesterday.
Light on the appointment of Herr Helldorf as Police President of Berlin is shed by the Berlin correspondent of the "Manchester Guardian," who says that there was a conference at Heiligedamm, where Dr. Goebbels, Minister of Propaganda, was staying, after which Herr Helldorf was appointed.

The appointment has the appearance of a coup within the Nazi Party by the Radical wing, who dislike capitalist Ministers like Dr. Schacht. It is understood that Herr Lovetsov resigned because he disapproved of the anti-Semitic demonstrations organised by the Radicals.
However, Herr Helldorf's appointment requires Reichsfuehrer Hitler's endorsement, which it may not receive, as neither General Goering nor other leaders were previously informed. Herr Himmler, one of the most important military Nazi leaders, who likewise was not informed of the impending change, has flown from Bavaria in order to consult Herr Hitler about Herr Helldorf's appointment.

NEW GREEK CABINET SWORN IN

Kondylis' Position Strengthened

ANTAGONISTIC MINISTERS DROPPED

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL
Athens, Yesterday.

The Cabinet crisis ended yesterday evening when M. Tsaldaris presented to President Zaimis a list of the new Ministers, who immediately afterwards took the oath of office.

The consultations which preceded the formation of the new Cabinet had resulted in the strengthening of the position of General Kondylis, especially since the army had let it be known that it would insist on General Kondylis retaining his post of Minister of War.

In these circumstances it was decided merely to reconstruct the Cabinet by dropping those Ministers whose antagonism to General Kondylis had brought about the crisis.

The following are the members of the new Cabinet:—
Minister of Social Welfare: M. Sayas;
Minister of Aviation: M. Nicolaidis;
Minister of Economic Affairs: M. Kartalis;
Minister of Justice: M. Roamnos;
Minister of Agriculture: M. Theodoridis.
All the other Ministers retain their posts.

It is not yet clear whether the Cabinet's monarchist tendencies have been strengthened by the reconstruction.—

WEATHER FORECAST

A moderate anticyclone covers the Pacific to the east of Japan. A depression is stationary over Shantung, and a depression appears to be forming over south-west China. At 2 p.m. yesterday afternoon the typhoon was situated about 300 miles to the east of south Formosa, moving slowly northward. The local forecast for today as issued by the Royal Observatory last night was south-west or variable winds, light to moderate; fine to cloudy.

AMERICA LEADS IN DAVIS CUP

Budge Beats Henkel In Four Sets

FINAL SET ALL OVER IN TWELVE MINUTES

London, Yesterday.
Donald Budge gave America a good start in the Inter-Zone Davis Cup Final at Wimbledon today when he beat Heinrich Henkel of Germany in four sets.

It was a match of streaks and patches with the American scoring an anticipated victory. Budge, however, failed to live up to expectations until the fourth set, when he electrified the gallery by sweeping to victory for the loss of only one game. It was all over in 12 minutes. During this set he revealed that controlled speed which took him into the semifinals in the recent Wimbledon Championships.

BOTH PLAYERS NERVOUS
Both youngsters seemed nervous, though Budge made numerous spectacular winners. Taking the game all round, however, there were periods of very mediocre play, in which the contestants lacked both control and length, which was quite unworthy of the occasion.

Henkel fought a very dour battle from the baseline, relying wholly on retrieving the wide-swinging drives of his opponent to both corners, and scoring on the American's mistakes. The German was inclined to lack initiative and allowed Budge to dictate.

Scores as cabled by Reuter were:—
Donald Budge (U.S.) beat Heinrich Henkel 7-5, 11-9, 6-3, 6-1.

ITALIAN PRESS DEMANDS SATISFACTION

APOLOGIES AND INDEMNITY SHOULD RESULT

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Rome, Yesterday.
All knowledge is disclaimed by official circles here of the British "friendly step" widely mentioned in the foreign press and consisting of giving Italy good advice in view of the forthcoming session of the League Council to equip herself with a detailed memorandum concerning the alleged Abyssinian infringements. An interview in this connection is stated to have taken place between Signor Mussolini and the British Ambassador, Sir Eric Drummond.

The treaties show that the Val Ual is on Italian territory, claims the Italian press in commenting on the Emperor's speech before Parliament on Thursday, when the Negus stated that it belonged to Abyssinia. The treaty of 1906 declared that the frontier runs in an eastern direction along the line accepted by Italy in the treaty of 1896, while Article IV of the former treaty expressly stated that all the districts inhabited by certain tribes came under Italian domination, while the whole district of Ogadain belonged to Abyssinia.

In any case, state the papers, Val Ual had been occupied by Italy many years ago. The surprise attempt of Abyssinia to take this position by force is thus proof of her plan of aggression. Italy therefore has a good right to demand apologies and an indemnity.—

MOB'S DEFIANCE OF CURFEW ORDER

DISSENSION WITH SIKHS

Lahore, Yesterday.
Two people were killed and several injured when the Royal Scots were compelled to fire four rounds into a crowd of 2,000 Muslims who in defiance of the curfew order camped in the streets all night long and attempted in the morning to reach the Shahid Guna Mosque, attacking the police cordons barring the progress of their processions.

The Muslims, maddened by religious fervour by a week's dissension with the Sikhs over the latter's demolition of an old mosque, are now resorting to passive resistance and refuse to disperse, despite the arrest of 300 of their number.

Air Force planes are at present circling over the town and troops are standing by.—
Reuter.

A message dated July 9 stated that serious trouble had arisen between the Moslems and Sikhs, necessitating curfew being proclaimed and British troops being called out.

ATTITUDE "DEEPLY REGRETTED"

Tokyo, Yesterday.

Replying to the recent Soviet protests against the alleged crossings of the frontier by Japanese troops from Manchukuo and Manchukuo gunboats along the Amur River, Mr. Koki Hirota, the Japanese Foreign Minister, declared that the charges were without foundation.

He said: "The Japanese Government finds it difficult to comprehend the real motives of the Soviet Government in directing unwarranted abuse against the Japanese authorities in Manchukuo, and moreover apparently seeking to attract wide attention by giving sensational publicity to exaggerated misinformation in that connection. In the interests of friendly relations the Japanese Government deeply regrets the attitude of the Soviet Government."—

HEAT WAVE ARRIVES IN CANTON

Thermometer Climbs To 90 In Shade

FARMERS PLEASED BUT POPULACE SIMMERS

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, Yesterday.
The heat wave, heralded by the arrival in Canton today, as the mercury climbed to almost 90 degrees Fahrenheit, in the shade. Lack of wind has added discomfort of the populace.

Farmers expressed a sign of relief, for the sunshine will help them to harvest the crops in time. Cool weather and rainfall would spell disaster to their plantations. The heat wave is largely responsible for the recession of the floods in different parts of the province.

Soda fountains, ice drink parlours and beach resorts are crowded with people, who want to keep cool, despite the summer heat. Motor-cars, buses and rickshaws are also doing better business.

The streets, parks and open spaces are full of people at night. Many are unable to stay indoors owing to the heat and humidity. Some hire small boats and sleep on board.

91.2 IN COLONY

Hong Kong is also not without its heat wave. The highest temperature for July was recorded yesterday at 4 p.m., when the mercury reached 91.2 degrees Fahrenheit. The lowest temperature for the day was recorded at 10 p.m., when the thermometer recorded a mere 84.

SHORT STORY

They Sailed In The "Flowery Land"

SEBASTIAN CARLOS, naked to the waist, his back raw and welked from the vicious blows of a tanned rope's end, shrieked in agony as the icy wind lashed his bare flesh. It was September, 1863, and Carlos was lashed to the rigging of the sailing vessel, "Flowery Land," for minor insubordination to Mr. Kaswell, first mate of the inappropriately-named ship. Had he been guilty of a more serious offence, no doubt
 Mr. Kaswell would have dealt severely with him!

The "Flowery Land," bound from London to Singapore with a cargo of wines, was not a happy ship. Captain John Smith was, in the opinion of First Mate Kas-well, far too mild a man to have command of such men as composed his crew. Mr. Kaswell, as has probably been remarked, was something of an artist in disciplinary tactics, whereas Captain Smith believed in the more simple expedients of two hard fists and an occasional blow with a marlin spike.

In the end Mr. Kaswell's ideas proved correct, for it was the very humanity of Captain Smith that brought about the mutiny of the "Flowery Land," and his own death. The skipper appeared on deck towards the end of the second hour of Carlos' punishment—which Kaswell had intended to last for five hours—and ordered his release. It is always a mistake for one officer to countermand the orders of another, and in this case it made the crew suspect disagreement in the cabin, and fanned the flame of dormant hatred into open revolt.

Scarcely a man amongst the crew did not bear marks of corporal punishment at the hands of Kaswell. They were chiefly Greeks, with three Turks and Spaniards, a British carpenter,
 Anderson, and a Chinese steward and cook. In the cabin were Captain Smith, Kaswell, William
 Taffin, the second mate, and George Smith, brother of the captain, travelling as a passenger.

John Lyons was the only foreign member of the crew who could speak decent English, and was the acknowledged leader of the men. A big, strapping fellow of uncertain national status, he appeared to be a man of some breeding, and bitterly resented the cruelties of Kaswell, to which he was daily exposed. On the day following Carlos' release
 Lyons was struck by the mate, and ordered the same punishment. Before the men could seize him, however, he was on his feet, and with a mighty blow to the face, sent Kaswell flying. The men looked on in horror-stricken silence.

It is possible that Mr. Kaswell was so astounded by this sudden turning of the worm that it took him some seconds to scramble to his feet. Eyes red-rimmed with rage, he flew at the waiting sailor, but before he could twine his thick fingers about his throat, a knife swung through the air,
 and Kaswell pitched forward dead.

The murder was like a spark in a powder magazine. Men all over the ship went insane with a hideous rage that only blood could satiate. Like maniacs they rushed for the cabin, at the entrance to which they found Captain Smith with a heavy revolver.
 Before he could fire a shot, he had crashed to the deck beneath a tearing, punching, kicking, knif-ing mob, and in a moment his body was in bloody ribbons. Rushing to the aid of his brother, the luckless passenger, George Smith, met with a similar end, but not before he had mortally wounded
 two of his assailants.

A ghastly pause followed, while the crew pondered the consequences of their awful deeds.
 As they stood in horror-stricken silence, Lyons and two others appeared with the Second Mate, Taffin, as a prisoner. Some of the mutineers were for dispatching the officer on the spot, but Lyons pointed out that they would need his services to navigate them to land. This Taffin promised to do, but he was a

"bucko," and even with his life
 at stake he gave orders.

"I'll take you along," he roared, "but, by the living God, I'll see you hanged for this." He also insisted that the bodies of the murdered men be properly shrouded and buried at sea, and himself said the burial service, surrounded by ribald and brutal men, who were now strangely silent. Then the ship set a course for the South American coast, with Taffin a prisoner, at the helm.

The lot of Sebastian Carlos did not alter with the changed conditions aboard the "Flowery Land." Carlos had taken no part in the mutiny—and if the truth be known, he was a harmless kind of fellow, who was the chief butt for the cruelties of the mate.
 With the mutineers in charge, he was subjected to almost as much harsh treatment, and it was natural that he should gravitate towards Mr. Taffin, who had always been kind to him. Anderson, the ship's carpenter, who was in his bunk at the time of the rising, also promised to aid the mate.

Towards the end of September,
 1863, the "Flowery Land" sighted the coast of Argentina, and Lyons ordered Taffin to heave to, off a point about 50 miles below the mouth of the River Plate. Boats were then provisioned, and the crew ordered to make ready to abandon ship. Lyons impressed upon them that if questioned they must say that they were the sole survivors of the "Flowery Land," which had foundered some weeks previously, and announced his intention of scuttling the ship. The cargo of wine had been freely broached in the intervening days, and, although no major crimes had occurred during the wild de-bauches that followed, the men were in a reckless and dangerous state of mind. It was at this juncture that one of them indicated Taffin, and suggested that it would be as well to kill him, now that his services as navigator were no longer required. Pistols were drawn and pointed towards Taffin, but the tough young mate merely laughed.

"If you shoot me, you fools," he sneered, "how will you get through the jungle. Navigation is about as necessary there as at sea, I guess."

The officer was right, and Lyons knew it. To reach Buenos Aires through the dense jungle would be virtually impossible without the aid of a man who knew the sun and the stars. Curtly he ordered Taffin to take a seat in the boat, and the mate silently obeyed.
 The poor Chinese cook and steward, who had faithfully fed the mutineers during the unhappy voyage, however, were less fortunate, and the manner of their end deprives their cruel murderers of any sympathy that might be felt for them.

Lyons and others of the crew plunged below to attend to the scuttling, while the Chinese waited expectantly on deck. On their return, however, they pushed the poor wretches aside, leaped into the boats and shoved off, leaving the Chinese crying pitifully for their lives. The cook jumped into the water, and swam towards the departing boats, but the brutal mutineers hurled empty bottles at him until he disappeared below the waves. His companion went down with the doomed ship.

The boats succeeded in reaching the shore, where Taffin guided them towards the little town of Rocha. That night, however, Taffin despatched Carlos with a long letter, explaining what had occurred, to a British settler at Rocha, who promptly advised the Chief of Police. A strong armed party was sent to intercept the mutineers, for fear that they might murder Taffin in sight of the town, and all were captured and conveyed to Buenos Aires.

Ere long they were shipped to England, and early the following year every survivor, with the exception of Carlos and Anderson, was sentenced to death. Mr.
 Taffin was warmly commended for his courage and received a money grant from the Admiralty and the owners of the ill-fated "Flowery Land."

A New Idea Open Work Theme For High Corsages

London.
THESE open-work themes for high corsages are a new idea. One slants diagonally from left shoulder to opposite side of waist in a black floral printed gown. The exact perfect figures ungirt by anything else but a hip band in corsets. This fact becomes more insistent through the growing tendency for backless blouses and dresses worn with tailored jackets.

In reflecting ideas from the Far East, perhaps the most subtle and less pursued is the short-waisted, tight-fitting jacket that shows a narrow stretch of nudity between it and belts of summer evening "Pirate" gowns.

STITCHED LINEN HAT

Hair Ring To Restrain
The Locks

HATS show a great formality than previous seasons have evoked. Often they are tailored in one of the ensemble materials.

An attractive model is made of stitched linen with a moderately large brim and a crown formed of a bandanna whose ends pass through the material at the junction of crown and brim and tie into a bandeau at the back of the head. These are being featured and also an attractive hair ring to restrain the locks. It is an open wire hoop wound with heavy strands of vari-coloured cellophane.

Latest Beach Ensembles

Pastel Colour Combinations

AMONG the loveliest and newest beach ensembles are those made of printed challis in pastel colour combinations—pink with a red-brown motif; pale blue with a dark blue figure; canary-yellow with a white or maroon design.

They consist of pyjamas of three-quarter length or a skirt, as the case may be, with a mannish or a halter-top shirt, and a box coat with short sleeves or none.

This type of costume when offered in women's sizes often employs solid-toned silk—or rayon—jersey and the dressmaker aspect may be enhanced by dashes of embroidery.

HOW TO WASH BALL FRINGES Excellent Method

TO wash a ball fringe successfully wash the curtains with mild soap flakes and warm water rinsing well. Hang on the line without wringing. After the curtains are pressed and the fringe is thoroughly dry, roll it lightly between the hands to restore the fluffiness. Even the cheaper grades respond to this treatment.

NAVY FABRIC GLOVES

YOUR gloves may be of fabric, and should match at least one other item of your outfit. Navy fabric gloves should match your hat and jumper.

BEAUTY HINT

BRUSHING does a lot to make eyebrows black and silky. During the day brush them with an eyelash-grower and at night with mascara.

Stylish Hats To Suit Features And Expressions

THIS season your hat will be worn almost straight on the head. The newest shape is called "shovel." Not as fearsome as it sounds. It has a shady brim, jutting forward a bit in front, turned up sharply at the back.

There are also:—
Sailor shapes with turned-up brims for women with round, cheery faces, but not for anybody with a stern expression.

Straight-brimmed boaters, which make you look earnest, business-like.

Bonnets and off-the-face hats, which demand small features and a placid brow.

SHOES MUST BE COMFORTABLE

Latest Streamline Styles

YOUR shoes must be comfortable or you won't look happy. A sad face is a deterrent to fashion. The trouble with most very comfortable shoes is that they are far from smart.

There are two excellent shapes in this season's range of "comfort" shoes.

A lace-up style, with punched holes all over the glaze leather top, and a glaze court shoe with a Cromwell buckle are instances. Both are in the new streamline shape.

CONTRASTED SHIRTS WORN WITH SHORTS

Popular Play Suits In Various Colours

SLACKS AND PYJAMAS

SHORTS worn with contrasted shirts and supplemented by gay little jackets, very much like those that go shopping or motor-ing, make the favourite play suits, particularly adapted to the beach and guaranteed to convert all temperaments and ages to ball-playing, racing and hoop-rolling.

Slacks and pyjamas are more practical for sailing out to sea; and this year are often astonishingly dainty in colour. Pink is a sensible favourite as it is popular everywhere just now, and pale blue, emerald-green, brown, red and white are all seen. Navy is, of course, a classic, but is invariably set off by a striking contrast. Slacks and pyjamas have their shirts and their coats, these often of finger-tip length and boxy. At other times they wear natty little boleros usually of white linen, acetate or silk.

TWO BRIGHT IDEAS

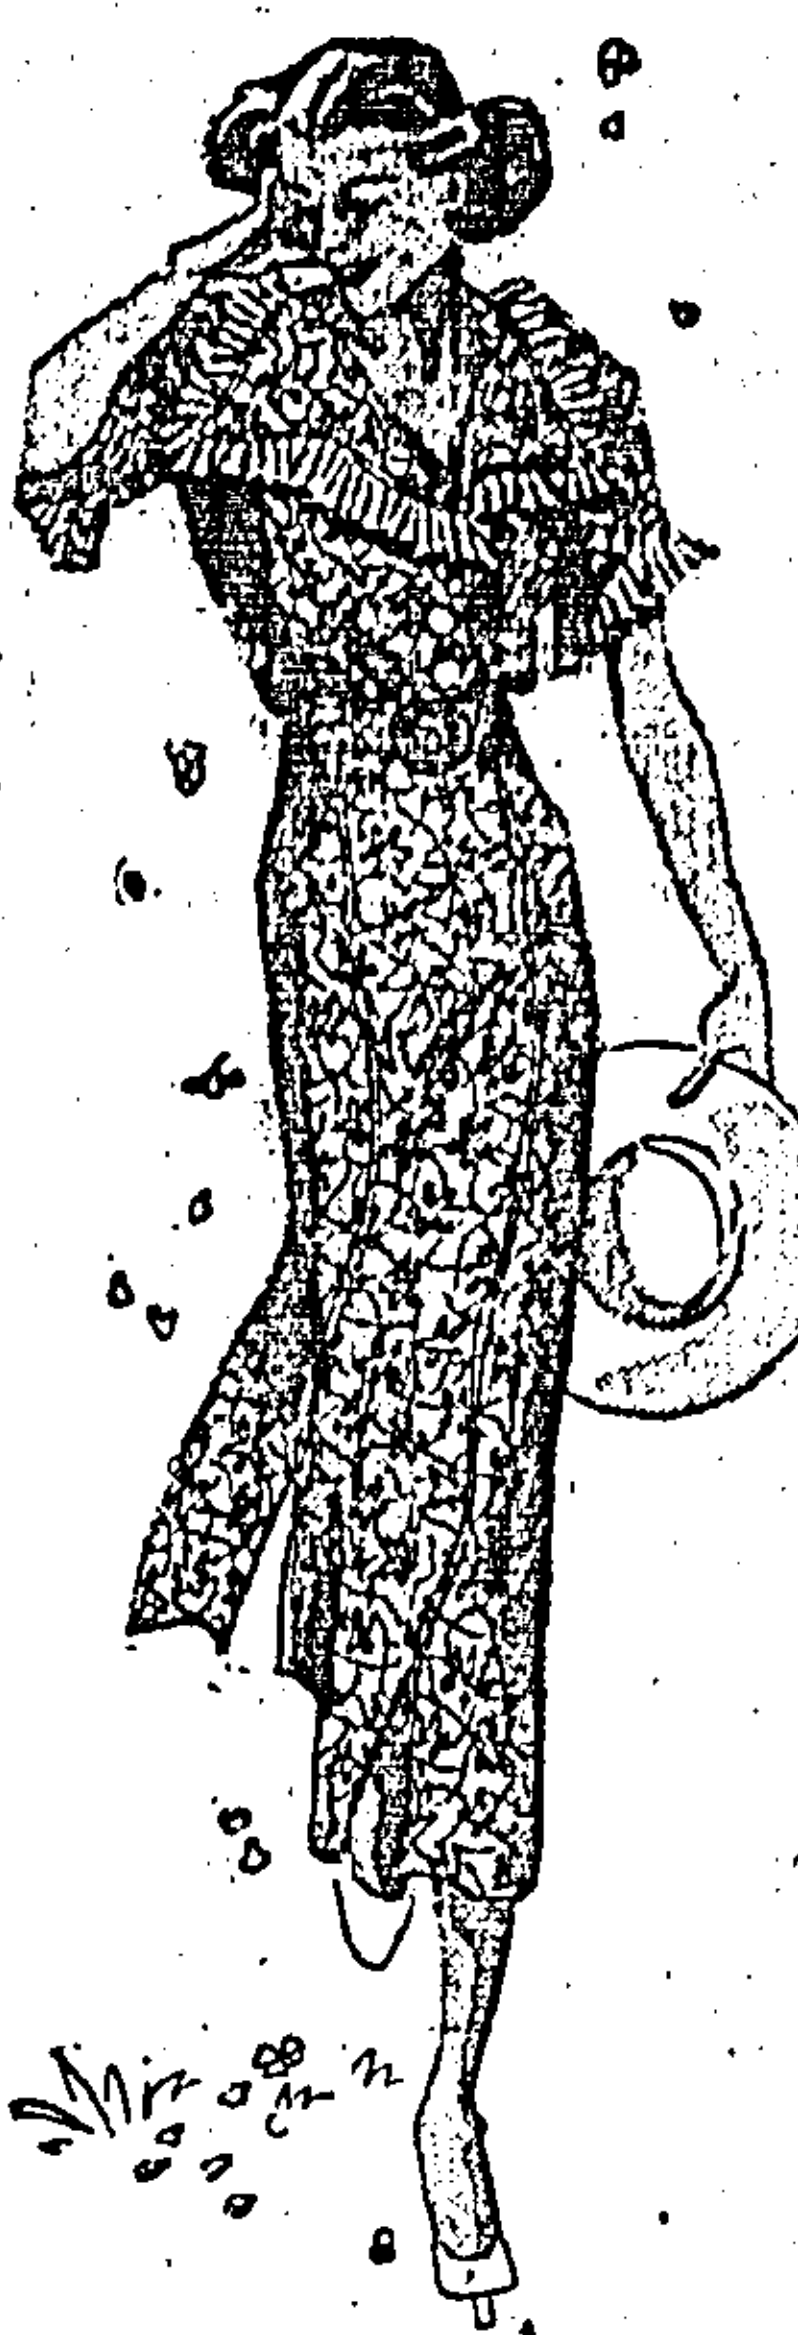

Scraps Of Cloth Come
In Useful

NURSERY TABLE COVERS

KEEP your left-over bits of cloth; they'll come in so useful for other handwork ideas. For instance, you can make a most attractive wash basin splasher from pale green cloth, decorated in a simple design. Wouldn't that look decorative in your bathroom? Or here's another notion—you can applique your scraps on to linen. They'll make the sweetest nursery table cloth, only, in this case, small turnings should be allowed and the edges turned in and sewn down with matching stranded cotton—one strand only—duck.

FIREPLACE COLOUR HARMONISES WITH THE ROOM

DO you wish to change your tiled fireplace to the colour required to harmonise with the room? To do this, use Chinese lacquer, which is sold in a wide range of colours. A half-pound tin does a small fireplace, and the result is most effective.

House Work Made Easier

Curtains For Shelves

If you hang short curtains of cloth in front of your shelves you will have much less dusting to do then. Cut the curtains to the size required, machine a threading tube at the top, and thread on to expanding wires. They are so easy to clean, too; you just wash them without taking them down.

A WORD FOR THE PLUMP AND SHORT

If you are inclined to be plump and at the same time short, you look for a long line, unbroken by any belt, no tussy or frilly bits, but softening folds, jabots or bows. Above all, no wide sleeves and no large-patterned materials.

GAY MATERIALS IN SOBER STYLES

YOUR evening frock may go gay, as the saying is, in vivid flower patterns on a dark ground. If you go gay about material, be sober about style.

DINNER DRESSES

DINNER dresses with high, round necklines and wide, elbow-length, slit sleeves are smart.

K.C.C. SECURE FIRST POINTS IN SENIOR LAWN BOWLS LEAGUE

U.S.R.C. AND C.R.C. AGAIN WITHOUT TENNIS FIXTURE

Confusion Follows Revised Fixtures

MRS. RICE-EVANS BOUND FOR NORTH ON AUGUST 7

Owing to a misunderstanding between the Hong Kong Lawn Tennis Association and the Clubs in the Mixed Doubles League, the United Services Recreation Club and the Chinese Recreation Club are again without any fixtures this coming week.

The Clubs concerned were notified by the Association to make their own arrangements about postponed fixtures, and the U.S.R.C. and C.R.C. were to have played off their original fixture to-morrow, but when the Association's revised fixture list was issued the Chinese Club was informed that their match on Monday was against the K.C.C. "B" team, which was played last Friday at King's Park.

The Chinese then postponed their fixture against the U.S.R.C., and are now unable to get together sufficient players to play, if called upon.

U.S.R.C. Player Leaving

The U.S.R.C. will shortly be losing the services of Mrs. Rice-Evans, who is leaving for the North on August 7.

The Kowloon Cricket Club "A" team meet their "B" team in the only fixture to-morrow and should win comfortably.

The following are this week's fixtures:

MONDAY
Mixed Doubles League
K.C.C. "B" v K.C.C. "A" (King's Park)

TUESDAY
"A" Division
C.R.C. "A" v Craigengower
U.S.R.C. v I.R.C.

WEDNESDAY
"B" Division
C.R.C. v I.R.C.
H.K.C.C. v University

THURSDAY
"C" Division
K.C.C. v K.I.T.C.
A.T.C. v University

FRIDAY
"D" Division
Police R.C. v Army T.C.
Radio S.C. v C.R.C.

SATURDAY
S. China v K.B.G.C.
K.D.R.C. v K.C.C.
K.P.C. v C.S.C.C.

KOWLOON DOCK BOWLERS CLASH NEXT TUESDAY

Omar's Conqueror Favoured

COLONY CHAMPIONSHIPS

The Colony Lawn Bowls Championships will be resumed on Tuesday when three ties will be decided. The most interesting game will probably be that between the two Kowloon Dock players, G. Mitchell and U. M. Ramsay, the conqueror of J. V. Omar in the previous round.

Maintaining last week's form, Ramsay should emerge victorious. H. Alves, one of the best players the Recreio can boast, will have to be at the top of his form if he is to overcome T. Armstrong.

On Tuesday the first game of the Semi-final of the Pairs Championship will be decided when L. A. R. Duncan and R. Duncan meet F. X. Silva and C. G. Silva. This should prove to be the most interesting struggle in the competition and will lack nothing in thrills and interest.

The full programme for the week is as follows:

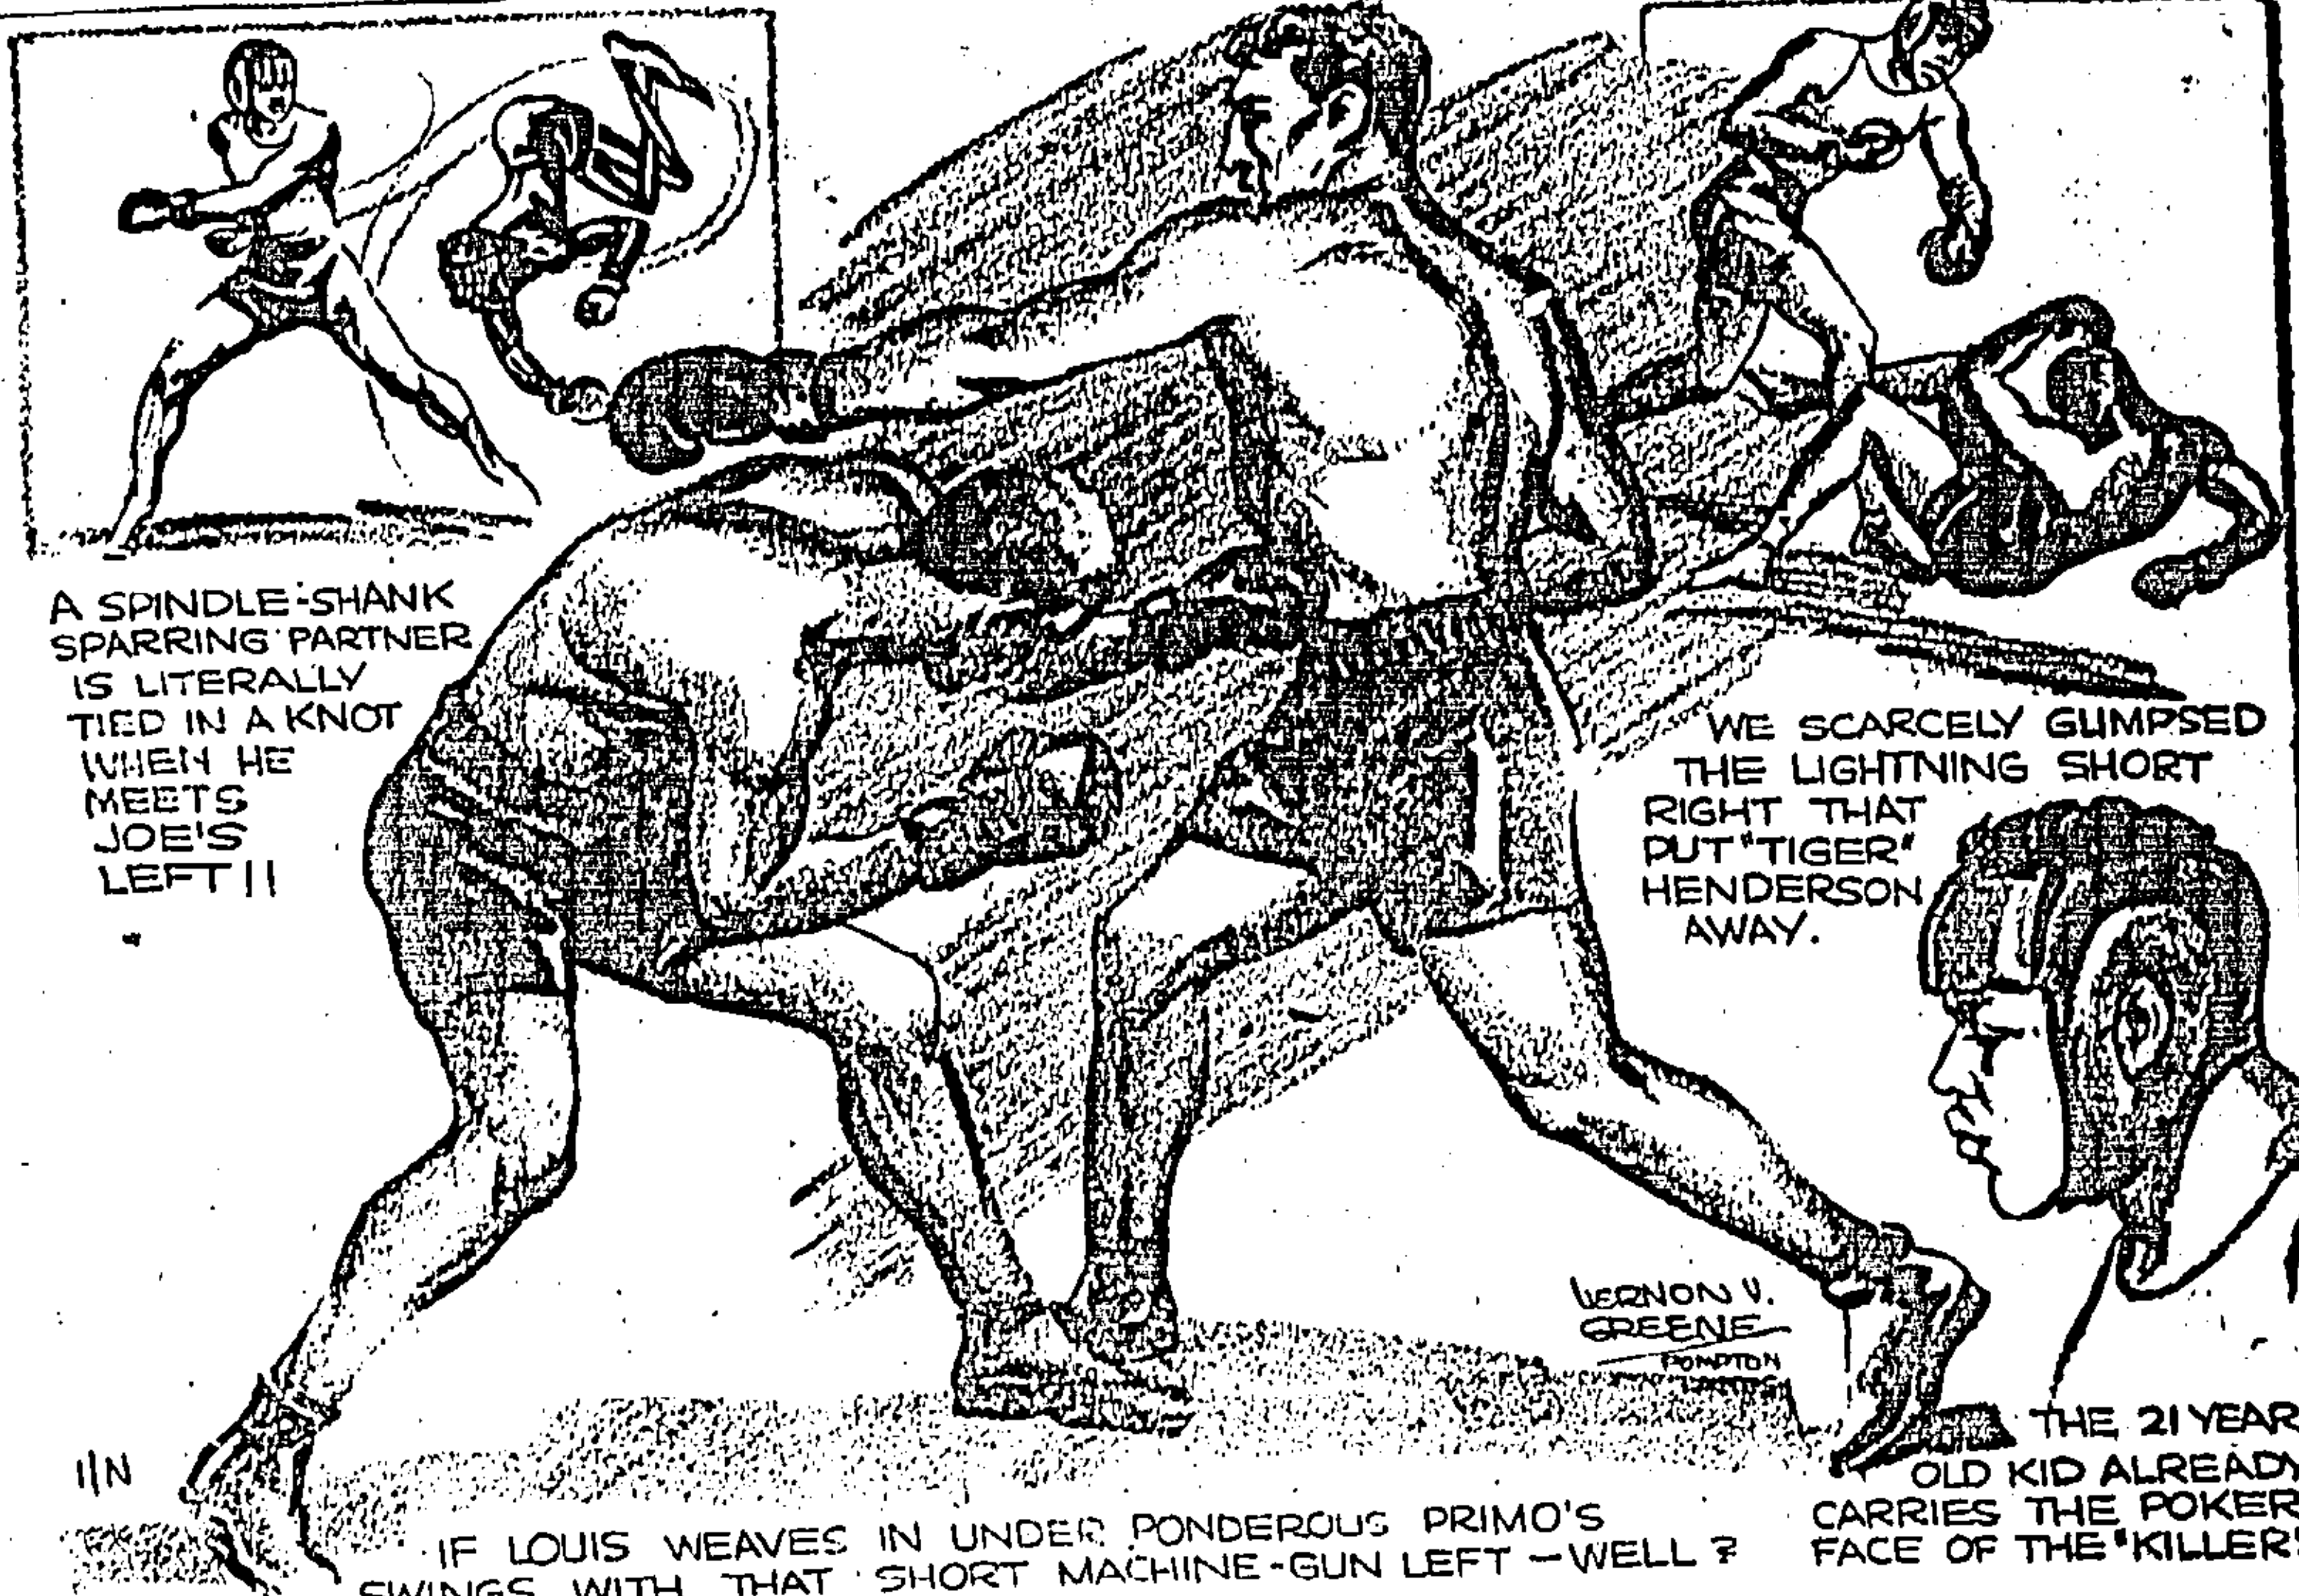

TUESDAY
Singles
T. Armstrong v H. A. Alves (K.C.C.)
H. Overly v W. McLeod (K. Docks)
G. N. Mitchell v J. V. Ramsey (Recreio)

PAIRS
L. A. R. Duncan and R. Duncan v F. X. Silva and C. G. Silva (Civil Service)

WEDNESDAY
Singles
A. M. Holland v E. C. Arculli (Civil Service)
F. Cullen v A. Hyde-Lay (Recreio)

PAIRS
M. J. Medina and J. O'Connell v S. R. Colclough and J. Shepherd (Bowling Green)

THURSDAY
Singles
R. Duncan v A. Macfarlane (Recreio)
B. W. Bradbury v G. Silva (Taikoo)
W. K. Way v J. C. Brown (Civil Service)

Joe Louis, "Black Menace" from Detroit, caused a surprise when he gained a technical knock-out verdict over Primo Carnera, giant Italian ex-champion, in the sixth round of their scheduled 12-round bout last month. Above are some impressions of the negro threat to Braddock by Vernon Greene.

LOCAL BASEBALL TO-DAY

Two practice baseball games will take place this morning, when the Hong Kong Americans clash with the Japanese line at 10 a.m. on the Navy ground at Caroline Hill, and the Canadians encounter the Hong Kong Chinese at the same time on the "La Salle" College ground, Kowloon Tong.

H.K. SPORTS JOTTINGS

By A. E. L.

Club Soccer Players On Leave
ANDY Duncan, the Hong Kong Football Club's half-back for several seasons past, who is at present on home leave, is expected back in the Colony sometime in December, but it is very doubtful whether he will resume his soccer activities.

Ernie Strange, the Club's centre forward, who is another member of the first eleven at present on leave, is expected back in February, and will thus miss the major part of the season.

In all probability Forrow, who played with conspicuous success for the senior eleven at forward last season, will be seen in the leader's position. A hard-working player, he has the makings of a very fine forward.

A newcomer to the Club junior side will be Robin White, who kept goal for Jardine's in the frequent inter-Hong matches last season. By far one of the best custodians I have seen among the junior clubs, he is almost certain to displace Payne in the Club side.

W. M. Bitter, who played soccer throughout last season for the Club Juniors, is about to be transferred to Sourabaya, D.E.I. He was a hard-working half-back, and will be sorely missed.

Amateur Attempt Abandoned
THE Chung Wah Football Club (the Chinese United Football Club), who had twice applied for permission for affiliation to the Hong Kong Football Association, but who were refused owing to the similarity of the name, in Chinese, to the Chinese Athletic Association, have not written again to the Association as they have decided to abandon the idea of joining the Association.

Y.M.C.A. Polo Players Indisposed
A. W. Wagstaff, who is referred to in last Sunday's "China Press" as "a tower of strength," and as one of the most reliable defensive water-polo players in Shanghai, has been ill for the past few days.

S. Fowler, the European "Y" goalkeeper, is just recovering from a slight attack of flu and will not be seen in the water until next week.

Kwok Chun-hang, China's brilliant breast-stroke swimming champion and holder of two Melbourne Centenary championship titles, has already left Australia by the s.s. Changtse and is due in the Colony on August 9.

Military Swimming
THE 8th Heavy Brigade, Royal Artillery, are anxious to meet the European Y.M.C.A. water-polo team at their open air pitch at Stonecutters Island next Wednesday.

"C" Coy. East Lancashire Regiment are holding their annual aquatic meeting in the "Y" pool next Wednesday, commencing at 2 p.m.

The East Lancashire Regiment's Battalion Swimming Sports will be held in the European Y.M.C.A. bath on August 8 and 9, commencing at 2 p.m. on each day.

The Royal Army Medical Corps and the Royal Engineers are holding their annual aquatic on August 21 and on August 29 and 30, respectively, in the "Y" pool.

The Hong Kong Area (China Command) annual swimming championships will be held in the European Y.M.C.A. bath on Wednesday, August 18, and Friday, August 20, commencing at 2 p.m. on each day.

There will be another big gap in the Hong Kong Football League fixtures during October when the Lincolnshire Regiment leave the Colony for India—the other is the Chinese participation at the National Games on the "Double Tenth."

World Olympiad Soccer XI
MR. Wong Ka-sun, the South China Athletic Association's soccer representative on the Football Council, is hoping that the National Federation at Nanking will fall in with the suggestion that Hong Kong be made the training spot for the All-China 1936 World Olympiad soccer side.

He expressed the opinion that Hong Kong was much better suited than any other port in China, and that it would also be more convenient to arrange matches. Hong Kong also had much better talent to pit against an Olympic team, he continued.

He also thought that the Colony would be the selected centre for swimmers, as they had better facilities here for training.

A. R. Minu, the interport cricketer, has not been playing tennis recently owing to ill-health. He is, however, still keeping up his lawn bowls and is now one of the most improved bowlers in the Indian Recreation Club.

C. G. Silva, the popular Recreio bowls skip, has reached the final of the Recreio singles championship five times but has only annexed the title once.

Lady Swimmer's Holiday
MRS. L. Moss, who recently established a bath record for the Ladies' 50 Yards Free Style at the European Y.M.C.A., is leaving shortly with her husband on a short trip to Peiping. She intends returning here in time to swim in the Colony Championships during August.

An only goal by H. De Sa on Friday night gave the Infantry the right to meet the Static Machine Guns in the final of the H.K.V.D.C. water-polo tournament, which will be held next Saturday night.

CHAMPIONS DEFEAT CRAIGENGOWER "B"

BROWN GIVES K.B.G.C. THRILLING WIN

RECREIO JUNIORS' NEW MARK

THE feature of yesterday's bowls was supplied by the Kowloon Cricket Club, who secured their first win in the Senior Division by beating the Police by 22 shots at the Valley, while the champions consolidated their position with a win over their "B" team.

The Recreio seniors won comfortably against the Indians at Sookunpoo, and spoiled the latter's chances for a clean sweep of the mainland teams, while the match between the Kowloon Bowling Green Club and the Kowloon Docks was decided on the last head of the match, and with the last wood. The scores were level at the last head of the encounter between the rinks skipped by J. C. Brown (K.B.G.C.) and F. Cullen (K.D.R.C.) when, with the Docks lying 1, Brown drew for the shot with his last wood. Curiously enough, Brown is also a member of the Kowloon Docks Recreation Club!

In the Junior Division, the Kowloon Bowling Green Club enhanced their chances of retaining the championship by beating Taikoo, while the Recreio established a record win by trouncing the Electricians by 50 shots to better their 41 against the Yachtsmen!

There were no possibles or 7's scored yesterday, although L. Guy's Bowling Green rink, F. X. Soares' Recreio four, J. Cavanagh's Craigengower quartette and A. Macfarlane's Football Club four all secured 6's.

BELGIAN CITY OF THE INSANE

Traditions Hallowed By Centuries

Work And Play In Perfect Freedom Of Movement

(By Oscar E. Millard)

AN experiment on a scale never before attempted in Great Britain is just beginning in South Wales.

Lunatics are being released from asylums and boarded out with villagers in a number of districts around Swansea and Abergavenny. They will live in perfect freedom, and be allowed to work and mingle with the inhabitants without restraint of any kind.

This experiment is inspired by the remarkable results achieved by similar methods in a small town in the Campine district of Belgium—Gheel, city of the insane.

In appearance there is nothing to distinguish Gheel from any other Flemish town. Yet there are more than 3,000 lunatics of both sexes, suffering from every type and degree of insanity, working, playing and living in complete freedom in the homes of the sane members of the population.

Of the 2,995 sane families in the rural district of Gheel, more than two-thirds have lunatics boarding with them en famille, helping in the house, working in the fields or doing what they can to make themselves useful. Every year an average of 25 per cent of the patients in residence there are able to return home cured, or sufficiently improved to be able to take up the threads of normal life.

The most up-to-date mental institutions in the world cannot show results comparable to those consistently achieved at Gheel.

Attempts have been made to establish similar colonies elsewhere, and the practice of boarding out mental patients is now steadily growing in many countries. Nowhere has it been found possible so far to carry it out on the same scale.

The reason is that conditions at Gheel are unique. The inhabitants have been accustomed to the care of the insane for over 1,000 years.

Like Fairy Tale
The story of how this tiny hamlet came to be the City of the Insane sounds like a fairy tale, for legend has it that Gheel owes its existence and development to an Irish princess named Dymphna.

Early in the seventh century this young princess, fleeing from the incestuous advances of her father, sought refuge with some missionaries and accompanied them to Antwerp. Thence she fled with her confessor into hiding in the lonely hamlet of Gheel. Her father followed her, and, enraged by her resistance, slew her.

The inhabitants who had witnessed this bloody deed built a chapel over the remains of the virgin martyr. Tradition inscribed her in the Book of Saints.

Thenceforward the relics of Saint Dymphna became an object of veneration and a centre of pilgrimages from all over Europe. Her intercession was invoked especially by those "possessed of the devil," whom she herself had resisted to the death. The possessed were led raving from far and wide to take part in the ceremonies of exorcism performed at her shrine. Among the pilgrims there were many who, after the ceremony, prayed on in vain for the return of reason.

It became customary for the people of Gheel to offer the hospitality of their cottages to those who thus awaited the miracle that seldom happened, in return for which those who were able worked in the fields or helped as best they could.

Such is the legend surrounding the origin of Gheel. It is the only explanation to account for the fact that throughout the many centuries when, elsewhere in Europe, madmen were chained naked in dungeons, Gheel was already renowned as the City of Mercy, and had rapidly grown from a remote hamlet into a traditional centre for the insane.

Foundations Laid
Inevitably, treatment consisted essentially in laissez-faire. The monks of the Church of St. Dymphna, who devoted themselves to ministering to the needs of the "possessed," were more concerned with the spiritual welfare of the pilgrims than with any rational attempts at curing their mental distress.

But the foundations of the system were laid. When, in 1852, the State intervened and made of Gheel an official colony for the insane, all that remained to be done was to organise the villagers' traditional hospitality.

The few primitive cells built by the monks as a protective measure when the "possessed" manifested homicidal tendencies were abolished, and their place taken by a well-equipped infirmary.

All the other traditional customs were retained. Indigent patients who can work still contribute to the upkeep by helping their nourriciers. Many farm hands and artisans in various trades are recruited from the ranks of the insane.

Patients with means pay what they can afford for their board and are treated as paying guests, their social position being taken into consideration in the choice of household. Everything is done to allow the patients to lead their normal lives, and as far as possible to continue to follow their habitual occupations. Those who have no need to work are encouraged to take up a hobby.

High Standard Of Work
All the patients attend art and handicraft classes. The standard of much of the work I have seen at the annual exhibitions is well above the average.

When I was last there, there were two English people at the colony, one of whom was the guest of a well-to-do cigar manufacturer. Lawyers, merchants and farmers all extend their hospitality to patients as a matter of tradition.

The peasants receive a small payment from the State, varying according to the accommodation given to the patients. They are not allowed to make the care of patients their sole means of livelihood. To have one's name on the roll of accepted nourriciers is the hall-mark of respectability. To be removed from the roll is a social dishonour.

In all the attempts at boarding out mental patients in England and Wales, only very carefully selected cases are allowed to leave the asylums. Gheel, being one of the four State mental institutions in Belgium, receives many of the worst types of cases refused by private asylums. It is, therefore, remarkable that the infirmary has only 100 beds. I have never seen more than half of them occupied. It is, in fact, very seldom used except for observing new patients for the first few days before boarding them out.

Only about 3 per cent. of the patients have to be sent away as unsuitable for family care. Suicides are rare, and in spite of the complete liberty allowed the patients, not more than three per cent. or four per cent. ever avail themselves of the opportunity to escape.

The entire colony, which is practically self-supporting, is administered by one doctor, assisted by six qualified assistant medical officers.

WISE & OTHERWISE

NASTY
"What," asks a writer, "are the ten best years of life?" If you are a woman, from about thirty-five to thirty-six.

PROBLEM
Who said women have no sense of humour? The more you humour them the better they like it.

Misunderstood
The athlete who told a friend that he had won a walking race three times running.

EPITAPH
Of him—poor chap!
He drove a car with
A girl on his lap.

Rumination
A pane in the window's worth
Two in the neck.

Surprise In Store
A Kowloonite has a live shark as a pet. The reason is understood to be that a neighbouring cat has eaten all his goldfish and he wants to teach it a lesson.

SUDDEN STORIES
"Gosh!" said the motorist on the traffic-filled road, "what a lovely girl." And it's a safe bet that if his widow had known that's how it happened, she wouldn't have sent such an expensive wreath to the funeral.

Why He Married Her
Maybe she wasn't the flower of the baker's family. But she had the dough.

"What alters when water becomes ice?"
"The price."

APT
A man in an American town has opened an office where he gives divorce statistics, film actresses gives advice to young men in love. His sign on the door reads simply, "Suits Pressed."

Shakespeare Class
Hamlet said that his father had an eye like Mars, "to threaten and command." What we moderns would call a boss-eye.

TRAGIC STUFF
She was the Apple of his eye
Until he met a Peach.

Solved At Last
A lecturer says that few Scotsmen are natural musicians. That, of course, explains the mystery why Scotsmen are such failures at blowing their own trumpets.

TOO FRIENDLY
A naturalist says that goldfish never sleep. But they are quite useless to protect a household at night, for when they see a burglar they simply wag their tails and push off for another tour round the globe.

Water Bugs

If a creature faintly resembling a gigantic cockroach settles on your mosquito net one night don't get alarmed; it is only a bug. The large water-bug Belostomatidae, 3½ inches long and more than one inch across, frequently leaves the water on a hot summer's evening and goes for a fly in search perhaps of another stretch of water. It can be purchased in the streets, as it is eaten by the Chinese; one method of cooking it is to boil it in salt water. Its true nature as a water-dweller can easily be recognized by the flattened oar-like legs; in colour it is pale brown; it is almost perfectly stream-lined. Another water-bug, black in colour, that looks very like a water-beetle, is also eaten by the Chinese; it is about an inch in length. On more than one occasion these two insects have been pointed out to me for sale in the shops as cockroaches, which of course they are not, being true bugs. Incidentally the Giant Water-bugs, Belostomatidae, include the largest bugs known to science.

Snakes. — This is the time of the year that snakes are most commonly seen, for being cold blooded creatures their activity is proportional to the temperature. On cold days they are sluggish and retiring, on hot days active and much more open in their habits. Moreover, the venomous species can strike more swiftly in hot weather than in cold.

In two days I received four snakes, three from houses, one from the open; one of these was from my own home. Knowing it to be harmless I picked it up and transferred it to a suitable jar. It was a specimen of Lycodon aulicus, a small snake beautifully marked with chocolate brown and white and with a white band, speckled with brown, just behind the head. This band is cut into two by a brown stripe in the mid-dorsal line. This snake is quite easily recognized by this feature. One other snake received was of the same species.

A third was a young specimen of Elaphe radiata, yellowish brown with black markings, easily recognized by the three black lines radiating from each eye and the anterior half of the body with one or two black stripes along each side. This is one of the two species known locally as San sok sin, three knotted string snake. The other, E. taeniata, has a black stripe on either side of the head, passing through each eye and the posterior half of body and tail with alternate black and yellow longitudinal stripes. Harmless, though believed to be venomous by many Chinese.

Deadly Krait

The fourth snake was a magnificent living specimen of the so-called "Common" Krait; in reality it is quite rare. It is recognised by its colours, banded black and white the whole length of body and tail; there is a well defined ridge on the back, so pronounced that if the snake were cut across the section would appear triangular. This is the deadliest land snake in Hong Kong, a bite being, almost without exception, fatal; fortunately it only bites at night. Bungarus multicinctus is its scientific name.

A New Species

Another snake was sent me by "Vinjar," which proved to be new to Hong Kong, making the thirtieth species of land snake known from the Colony, of which 27 are known to me. The species is Holarchus formosanus, previously known from Formosa, S. Fokien, Kwangtung and Hainan. H. violaceus is a fairly common rich red-brown snake which is called by the Chinese Wor fa sohr, cornflower snake, presumably because it is the colour of ripe corn. There are only three species of snakes in England, one of which is very rare, so Hong Kong with 30 species has reason to be proud.

LIFE INSURANCE AS A CAREER

Men Of High Ideals Make Best Agents

BIG CHANCES FOR RIGHT MEN TO-DAY

(By E. J. R. MITCHELL)

In the past five years in Hong Kong the institution of Life Insurance has made rapid strides and many men have chosen life insurance as a career. This is true not only of Hong Kong but also of many other parts of the British Empire, particularly Great Britain.

MR. E. J. R. MITCHELL

The rapid growth of the business in the United Kingdom and our great Empire is largely due to the very active work done by the Canadian Companies, who are educating their Agents very thoroughly in selling life insurance for what it is worth, and who issue contracts which are up to date with modern requirements.

The Canadian Companies have long realised that it is not fair to dump a lump sum into a widow's lap and expect her to invest it for her support any better than her husband could; they have accordingly arranged various optional income settlements on all their Policies to provide widows and orphans with a monthly family income, instalments to cover education period and other varied methods of settlement to suit each particular case.

Selling Protection

It will readily be seen therefore that the man who enters the insurance field to-day has wonderful opportunities of selling more and better protection to so many homes.

In the past, owing to the nature of the remuneration in this business, the institution of life insurance has rather suffered from a plethora of men of poor quality; men who could not keep salaried jobs took up life insurance and sold it, in most cases, very poorly. In fact they were not selling life insurance, they were merely begging.

Fortunately the situation has altered considerably and there is no place in the business to-day for men of this type. This is largely due to the education given by Canadian and American companies to their Agents in applied salesmanship, and to-day the institution is attracting to its ranks men of much better quality than were obtainable 20 years ago. In fact there is now a degree known as the C.L.U. (Chartered Life Underwriter) which can be won in Canada, where regular examinations are held under the auspices of the Life Underwriters Association of Canada.

For Men Of Ideals

The calling of a life underwriter in Canada to-day is con-

Romance

MUCH of social history might be written in the form of tracing the ups and downs of words. Starting as a rare, because new, coinage to express some idea which has not yet got its appropriate label, a word will be used with striking significance by some poet or novelist; imitators who lack his inspiration will use it in a lower key; the newspapers will adopt it to adorn a commonplace paragraph; then it will become current among those who have no sense of "overtones" at all; and it will end by losing all meaning or even acquiring a meaning the reverse of what it connoted at the start of its adventure into popularity. The poet may speak of "the awful silence of a starlit night," the newspaper will make a headline of "an awful train tragedy," the nurse will tell Johnnie that he has made "an awful mess of his soup." Whether after dropping out of use for some time there will be a revival of the word in its proper sense or not seems to be a matter of chance. The individual writer is helpless, for he must use words that will convey a meaning that comes naturally to his readers; it is vain for him to say that he uses words in a meaning natural to him. If a critic said that Rubinstein gave "an awful rendering of the Fifth Sonata" it would be idle for him to plead that he intended to pay a compliment.

Of all the words that are at present suffering tribulation by vulgar use the most unfortunate at the moment is the sweet old word "romance." It still has a faint aroma of its old link with a stirring of the imagination, a glimpse of "the light that never was on sea or land," a vision of the beauty that may shine through some conjuncture of events in everyday life. But the word is getting terribly shop-soiled. When we read a heading of a paragraph "Sordid romance revealed in the Police Court" we know that the story will be of acts and motives from which romance is really a means of escape.

It would probably not be too optimistic to say that every one of us has at some time or another had his romantic experience, at least sufficiently felt to make the meaning of the word intelligible. Of these moments of intense feeling and vision there are at least three characteristics always in our consciousness; they are private to ourselves and not to be carelessly spoken about, they have nothing to do with money, they are not calculated, but instinctive, reactions in scorn of consequences. Could anything then be more hopelessly vulgar and repugnant than the use of the word by the Yellow Press and the Hollywood press agents in using "romances," however genuine, as a means of advertisement to increase somebody's "box-office value," or to play on the cash-snobbery vein by stating the total income of the romantic parties, and how it was earned or made? Surely it would be more effective to leave the "romance" interest to Romeo and Juliet or Heloise and Abelard, and head a financial item by some such title as "Generous marriage settlement arranged," or even consign these bits of information to the "City Page" or the advertisement columns?

Genuine Romance had of course a much wider sweep than anything connected with "sex appeal." No one has referred to the long history of Abyssinia in imaginative literature. The centuries of exclusiveness combined with the majestic ranges of forest-clad and snow-topped mountains, and the legends of "Prester John," set many a jongleur singing. Even dear old Dr. Johnson, who had more than the usual eighteenth century distrust of sentiment, was stirred up to his best effort in the tale of Rasselas, and "the mountains of Rasselas" became quite a common reference with the meaning of the lovely and impressive scenery that one might see in one's dreams. Improved large-scale maps are a poor substitute. One cannot fail to regret that the times are adverse to the survival of the spirit of Rasselas in the one country which has never been invaded by the factory chimney. For it is the old spirit of romance that prompted His Imperial Highness Haile Selassie to promise the assembled chiefs that he would lead them to war in person on his milk-white charger. Meantime the Swedish and Belgian officers who have been training his troops have been busy digging dugouts in the mountain sides as shelters from the bombs which will be dropped from skies grown "awful" in the modern as opposed to the older sense. Will Hollywood supply us with "shorts" showing "Isotta Fraschini planes dropping poison bombs on the mountains of Rasselas?"

EMPEROR OF ABYSSINIA

HIS Imperial Highness the Emperor of Abyssinia, King of Kings, and all the rest of it—few men have so many and such picturesque titles—must be a lonely man. His name, Haile Selassie, means "Holy Trinity," and he is by birth the religious head as well as the political head of his country; in fact he claims to be the hereditary head of the Egyptian Coptic Church. The Copts are one of the oldest branches of Christianity, though long separation and oppression by their Moslem neighbours have to a very large extent caused them to approximate rather with them than with European Christians. Lord Kitchener once said that there was nothing in their habits or appearance that would make it possible to distinguish them. There has been a strong hope that amongst the cartloads of manuscripts that have been dug up in recent years would be found a copy of the "Gospel according to the Egyptians" which was current in the early Christian centuries, but nothing corresponding in length and interest to Aristotle's collection of Greek Constitutions has turned up. Messrs. Grenfell and Hunt did find four pages of "Sayings of Our Lord," but they were very incomplete. The clearest was "Cleave the wood and I am there; lift the stone and I am there." This might be a bit of a Gnostic treatise. Six months ago another scrap turned up, but the whole of one edge was torn, and the lost words have to be supplied by guesswork. Only in the dry Egyptian climate could manuscripts have survived so long.

The greatest mass of written records has been found on the site of the old Greek city of Naucratis, and it will still take some years before they are all deciphered. In the meantime the one thing certain is that most of them are household accounts, which must have been carefully kept, for it has been possible for one of the explorers, Mr. Grafton Milne, to compile an economy of Naucratis which tells us the price of everything from a slave to a cabbage with more detail than would be possible for Hong Kong to-day.

EDUCATED DESPOTS

THE Emperor is himself quite an educated man, who made a tour of Europe a few years ago. He speaks French fluently, and understands English. His son and heir is a Cambridge graduate, and if he should ever come to the throne it will be interesting to see what he can do with his opportunities. One cannot feel too hopeful; for the experiment, of giving a first-rate English education to men who will succeed to the thrones of primitive countries has never yet produced an outstanding success, and frequently ghastly failures. The late King of Afghanistan tried to bring in the twentieth century with a rush where the fierce Abdurrahman had had to walk very carefully. He used to introduce some slight change after much explanation, and silence all opposition by putting the critic into an iron cage suspended six feet from the ground. To supply the victim with food during the night only proved (Continued on Page 11)

BUILDING UP THE AIR FORCE

"VIGOROUS STEPS" BY GOVERNMENT

FULL DETAILS OF ENTRY, TRAINING AND PAY

PLANS for the recruitment of men for the Royal Air Force were made public recently in the following statement by the Air Ministry:

Consequent on the decision of His Majesty's Government rapidly to expand the R.A.F., it is necessary to take the most vigorous steps to provide the large body of skilled pilots and tradesmen required.

These steps will include:
1.—The entry for training of large numbers of personnel.
2.—The re-entry of personnel who have passed to the reserve or left the service.
3.—The retention in the service of the personnel due to go out in the next two years.

The Men Required
The total entries that will be required in the present and the next succeeding year are approximately:
Pilots—2,500.
Tradesmen and unskilled men—20,000.

Of these approximately half will be required before April, 1936. These entries are far in excess of any the Air Force has had to

FIVE YEARS AGO

[Extracts from the Sunday Herald of July 20, 1930.]

The annual general meeting of the Chinese Estates Limited was held yesterday, with Mr. Liang Shi-yu in the chair. The net profit for the year was $132,104.40, and a dividend of $5 per share was declared.

Twenty-four Chinese were charged before Mr. R. E. Lindsay with being members of a Triad Society at Nos. 5 and 7 Star Street, Wanchai.

Exceptionally heavy rain, accompanied by lightning and thunder, swept over the Colony, being particularly severe between 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. The rainfall registered between 12.30 a.m. and 10.30 p.m. was 3.38 inches, and a total of 13.10 inches fell during the week.

The night train from Canton did not arrive from Canton till after 9 o'clock, over an hour late—owing to the heavy rains. The train was packed, although there was nothing of political importance in Canton to justify such a big exodus.

Pay And Gratuities
Accepted candidates will be appointed for four years' service on the active list followed by six years' service in the reserve. An opportunity may later be given to them to extend the active list period of their service.

They will receive pay and allowances in cash or kind equivalent to £225 on entry and increasing to £380 after a year's service, and will be entitled on passing to the reserve at the end of their active list service to gratuity at the rate of $100 for each year of such service after the first year.

Increased numbers will also be required of airman pilots. These pilots have hitherto been provided solely from among serving airmen, in the main from those who have entered the service as aircraft apprentices.

COMMODORE SEDGWICK

This is the fifty-first of the exclusive series of sketches of leading Colony residents by Mr. A. S. Konya, the talented Hungarian artist.

OUR Personality this week is Commodore Cyril Gordon Sedgwick, successor to Commodore Elliott, of H.M.S. Tamar and the Navy Yard.

Commodore Sedgwick, who was born on November 27, 1885, at Coventry, Warwickshire, began his training for a naval career in the Britannia in 1901, passing to H.M.S. London, of the Mediterranean Fleet, as a midshipman in May 1902, subsequently serving on H.M.S. Mars from 1903 to 1905. He was gazetted Lieutenant on July 15, 1905, in which capacity he served on H.M.S. Triumph and Revenge. Qualifying in gunnery in H.M.S. Excellent in 1911, he served on the Junior Staff of the Gunnery School at Devonport in 1911 and 1912. From July 1912 to January 1914 he was Gunnery Lieutenant of H. M. S. Liverpool, after which he served on the Senior Staff of the Gunnery School, Devonport, until the outbreak of the War.

August and September 1914 were spent in the North Sea on board the Magnificent, after which he returned to duty in the Gunnery School until the end of the year. 1915 and the early part of 1916 were spent as 1st Lieutenant and Gunnery Lieutenant of H.M.S. Royalist, including two months with H.M.S. St. Vincent, of the Grand Fleet. Appointed 1st Lieutenant and Gunnery Lieutenant of H.M.S. Courageous in May 1916, he was promoted (Continued on Page 14)

Wendy Barrie, Hong Kong's own screen star.

WENDY BARRIE JENKIN, one of the prettiest English actresses, was born in Hong Kong, of English parents, and went over to England to complete her education a few years ago.

Miss Barrie owes her film career to chance and good fortune (as well as a maximum amount of talent). She was visiting an actor friend at a film studio, when the chief of that particular studio spotted her, and advised her to take up film acting as a career. He was certainly correct, for she has turned out to be one of the brightest of Britain's younger stars.

She is not yet 20. She is intelligent, and has a flair for designing her own clothes.

Miss Barrie has auburn hair, dark blue eyes, is vivacious and petite, and has a figure which is unrivalled for slimness even in the film world, which has many slim film actresses.

It will be recalled that she appeared in "The Private Life of Henry the Eighth," and other films in which she has played include "Freedom of the Seas," and "Give Her a Ring," both B.I.P. films.

CLIFFORD MOLLISON was born in London, is five foot nine-and-a-half inches tall, and first commenced his acting career on the London stage in 1913.

The war broke out and shattered his start in life, and he fought right through the war. Afterwards he found it difficult to get his chance again, but after touring the provinces for a while, picking up valuable experience, he blossomed out as a West End actor, and became an instant favourite.

Eventually he was discovered by B.I.P. for the screen and he starred in the Elstree production, "Almost a Honeymoon," which put him in the front rank of English light film comedians. Since then he has played in "A Southern Maid" with Bebe Daniels, "The Luck of a Sailor" with Greta Nissen and Camilla Horn, "Freedom of the Seas" with Wendy Barrie and Zelma O'Neal, and "Give Her a Ring" again with Wendy Barrie and Zelma O'Neal.

Now he is starring in the B.I.P. production "Mister Clinders" for the third time with Zelma O'Neal. Mr. Mollison is generally reckoned to be England's foremost leading light comedian.

His motto is: "Yesterday is gone, to-morrow is to come, so

Hong Kong's FILM STAR AMONG THE FAVORITES

live well to-day." His ambition is to bring five minutes of happiness to at least one person during the day.

Mr. Mollison's hobbies are reading, cricket, tennis, golf, billiards and driving. He collects books. He is the son of William Mollison, the famous Shakespearean actor, and is a cousin of Jim Mollison, the aviator.

MATHESON LANG was born in Montreal in 1885, and has grey eyes, brown hair and fair complexion, and is 6 ft. 1 in. in height. He is the son of the Rev. Gavin Lang, a cousin of the Archbishop of Canterbury.

He might have used his powers of oratory in the service of the Church, had he followed his father's wishes. He preferred, however, to become an actor, and made his stage debut in 1897.

ing and acting during the greater part of the 22 years of her life. Even as a child, her great delight was to mimic her elders and betters, and for this she was always getting into trouble at the convent in London where she was educated. From dancing, singing and impersonating at impromptu concerts, she progressed to the stage, where she eventually achieved the height of her childish ambition, obtaining the leading child's part as the Princess in "The Windmill Man".

Her next step was in strange contrast. She was chosen to tour with Sybil Thorndike and Lewis Casson in "Saint Joan" and "Henry VIII." The development of her dramatic talent, which this experience led to, has since been of great value in her film work, and her next achievement was to come. But no! The management gain the position of understudy to June in "Clowns in Clover," and Jack Hulbert was so impressed with her work in a secondary role, that he agreed to give her the work of understudy in "The House That Jack Built."

When Helen Burnell, the principal, was recalled to America, she thought that her great chance to be a chorus girl

He made his film debut in "The Merchant of Venice" and has also played in "Scarlet Devil," "Dick Turpin's Ride to York," "The Wanderling Jew," "Henry, King of Navarre," "Triumph of the Scarlet Pimpernel," "The Chinese Bun-let," "Carnival" and "The Great Defender" (for B.I.P.).

He is fond of country living, and his sports are golf, yachting and play writing.

NANCY BURNE, half-Scots, half-Irish, has been singing, dancing and sup-pressing her disappointment. Nancy entered the competition, after many hours spent in teaching her friendly rivals the songs and dances set for the competition. Happily, she proved an easy winner, and she had "arrived."

But not for long. When the show was withdrawn she waited in vain for more work. So back went Nancy to the back row of the chorus, to start her battle for recognition all over again. "White Horse Inn," "Lovely Lady," and "Fanfare" saw her steadily climbing once more, till again in "Over the Page," as under-study to June, she had the opportunity of taking over a leading part.

She was now better known, and just before Christmas, 1932, she was invited to take one of the leading parts in the successful Comedy Theatre revue "Ballyhoo." It was there that she was espied by the film scouts. A beautiful ingenue, with singing and dancing talent, was urgently required by B.I.P. to play opposite Stanley Lupino in "Facing the Music." All within a few hours, she was taken to the studios, tested, and assigned the leading part—one of the longest leading parts in any British film—though it was her first appearance before the camera.

Lady Southern Entertains

LADY Southern was at home to the committee of the Hong Kong Women's International Club last Thursday afternoon. Lady Southern's interest in the Club is very well known; she lends her support to that and to many other activities with a simplicity born of the belief that every woman should play her part in social work. In a nicely worded speech she warmly commended the work which the Club does and especially emphasised the work of Mrs. L. Dunbar, Mrs. H. F. Sommers, and Mrs. D. M. Biggar.

Mrs. Dunbar is Chairman of the Club and has a great share in its success; Mrs. Sommers is Secretary, giving so much of her time every day to the work that she could practically call the Club her second home; Mrs. Biggar is in charge of the catering, and that she does her work well is shown by the ever increasing number of those who take advantage of the tiffins and teas served at the Club. The other workers at the Club, most of whom were present at the tea, are: Mrs. R. H. Kotewall, Mrs. E. M. Raymond, Mrs. M. E. Politi, Mrs. Alec Potts, Mrs. Frank Howard, Mrs. W. E. Denison, Mrs. N. C. Barber, Mrs. S. D. Begg, Mrs. A. Raymond, Miss Mossa Larssen, Mrs. Peter Todd, Mrs. A. S. Konya, Mrs. W. J. Gerrard, Mrs. A. W. Hayward, Mrs. Y. K. Chow, Miss R. M. Gill, Miss Betty Gerard, Miss E. Strahan, Mrs. G. W. Drolette, Mrs. H. D. Matthews, Mrs. A. S. King, Mrs. L. R. Andrewes, Mrs. Donaldson, Miss A. Hamilton, Mrs. B. Jack and Mrs. W. A. Cornell.

Lack Of Formality

AT tea a gay and pleasant atmosphere prevailed and it was another occasion to prove what a charming hostess Lady Southern is. There was nothing of that formality that might be suggested by a gilded gate and marching sentries, Lady Southern keeping the company jolly and amused with her witty remarks. On one occasion when the conversation turned on modern art and all that is extraordinary about it, she told this story:

A young Englishman was invited by an artist friend to view his collection of modern paintings. The young man accepted and passed from room to room growing ever more bewildered.

"Well," said the artist friend when it was over, "which of my gems did you like most?"

"—er—I think the portrait of your wife you have hanging in the bathroom."

"That!" exclaimed the artist. "Why that is a plan of the house drainage system!"

Our Organ Recitals

LATER on a discussion arose as to what topic of conversation most roused people to enthusiasm. It was generally agreed that nothing did so more than the internal organs and all the individual's various symptoms and complaints.

"How," one lady remarked, "a doctor has the patience to sit and listen to these each day and still maintain an earnest expression of interest, I cannot imagine."

"Yes," said Lady Southern, "a friend of mine once said that there were more 'organ recitals' in Hong Kong than anywhere else she knew of!"

Mrs. L. Mead, left, the well-known local swimmer, is going with her husband on a holiday trip to Peiping at the end of this month.

Mr. And Mrs. Mead On Holiday

A well-known couple leaving the Colony on holiday are Mr. and Mrs. E. M. K. Mead. They are going to spend a month in Peiping. This is the last chance they will have for some time of seeing China's beauty spot as film "Roberta." Miss Doreen Ma's appearance last Friday. So full of good spirits was she, that, defying all orders, she was determined to have a swim the very close second, and, needless to say, she excels in both.

Mrs. Mead's father left the Colony this week after spending a long holiday with his daughter and son-in-law. He is returning to South Africa via Japan, America and England, thus completing a tour round the world.

Local Radio Stars

ALL I've known about broadcasting hitherto is that my husband can sit up quite happily until after midnight getting such far-away lands as America and Russia, but this week I decided to visit the local broadcasting studio and see for myself what actually happens behind the scenes.

I explained my mission and was immediately introduced to two charming young ladies; one was Miss Audrey Steel the singer, and the other Miss Doreen Ma, the Australian pianist. "Well," I thought to myself, "apart from their accomplishments, they look so attractive that it is only a pity is of course no need to introduce her. In earlier days she sang with Ronnie True's band; but he has since been transferred to Batavia. That evening I was to enjoy hearing her sing three popular numbers: "When He Comes Home to Me," "The Object of My Affection," and "I Won't Dance"—this last from the delightful music is very well known in the Colony, as she broadcasts almost every week. She, too, specialises in jazz. Then I saw Mr. A. W. Whitehead with his big, important-looking saxophone, next day!

Lady Southern with the Committee and Helpers of the Women's International Club.

and the Rhythm Boys were also comfortably ensconced on one of the sofas.

The first local artiste announced was Mr. Whitehead, who hurried into the studio; the green light above the door glared red—none dare enter! But before a big screened window a little crowd had gathered, and what a lovely view of the performer! And then someone wanted to use the telephone, so he switched off the radio in the hall and we heard the soft "original" strains coming from the studio. Meanwhile the performers chatted gaily together and seemed quite unconcerned when the time for their own numbers arrived. Not such a terrifying place after all—I'll go again!

Local Yachting Party

DR. and Mrs. Li Shu Fan again entertained a large party on their yacht last Sunday. Miss Wang Ying, the Chinese actress, was among the guests, while Dr. Li Shu Fan's charming young daughter also accompanied the party. Following in her mother's footsteps, she attends St. Stephen's Girls' College. She enjoys it, but, nevertheless, loves the holidays!

The same evening Dr. Li Shu Fan entertained Dr. Todd of Canton to dinner. Dr. Todd some years ago adopted a Chinese daughter who has since married a well-known Chinese doctor in Canton. Now he contemplates returning to America at an early date to see his mother who has proudly turned ninety!

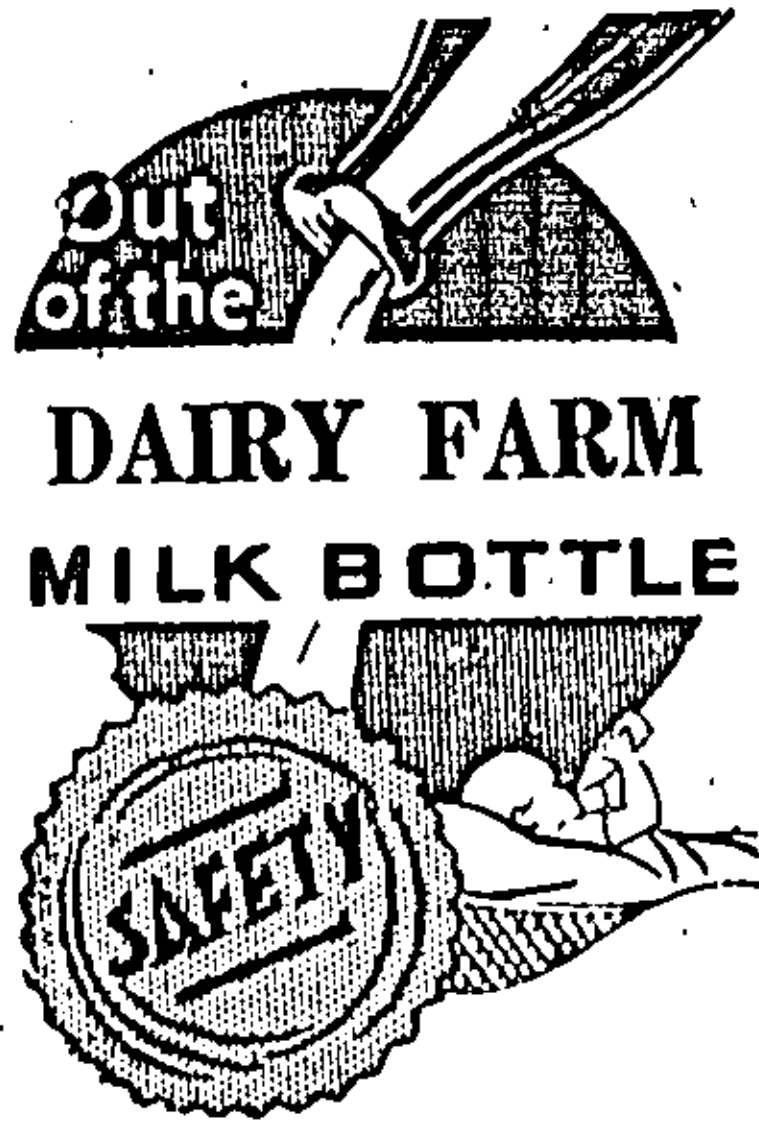

Women's International Club

MISS Mary Knight is this week's interesting new member of the Hong Kong Women's International Club. Miss Knight is an American journalist but recently arrived in the Colony. She is certainly a young lady with lots to do and lots to talk about. And that's just what we ask for, isn't it? At present she is connected with the Hong Kong Advertising and Publicity Bureau.

And more good news from the Club—after three weeks of illness Mrs. Peter Todd once more put in an appearance last Friday. So full of good spirits was she, that, defying all orders, she was determined to have a swim the very next day!

The Ubiquitous Rickshaw

I have no patience with those motorists and others who are continually complaining against the presence of rickshaws on the roads of the Colony. In my opinion rickshaw-pullers as a class are a most maligned section of society, and, considering the life they lead, they are the most cheerful set of amiable rogues one could imagine.

Nor is the harassed rickshaw-puller by any means the traffic menace that he is so often made out to be. There are 920 licensed rickshaw-pullers in Hong Kong and Kowloon, and during the month of June rickshaws were involved in only four accidents—which is a pretty good record, all things considered.

Even if it were not a fact that the rickshaw provides an efficient and cheap means of conveyance for a very large section of the community which is unable to afford taxi fares, rickshaw-pullers as a patient, long-suffering, hardily worked class should be afforded some protection, as a matter of sentiment.

Harold Seth Weds

HIS many friends in Hong Kong will be pleased to hear of the wedding of Mr. Harold Seth, the popular race pony owner, who was married recently at Victoria, B.C., to Miss Clara Maine.

There is one blot on the landscape, however. His Australian pony Got That, winner of the Randwick Plate in comparatively fast time during the first half of the season and one of the favoured entries for the Fremantle St. Leger next November, died last week. Mr. Seth also owns Just That, which surprisingly won the Manly Handicap in his only outing during the first half of the racing season.

Rotary

I had my first experience of Rotary last Tuesday, when I attended the luncheon of the local Club and heard an informative and thought-provoking address by Mr. George Shea on "A Basis for International Peace." It occurred to me while I was listening to the address that the Rotary movement, as it expands — and it has expanded greatly since its inception — may itself do much for this cause.

Rotary is not, as it is so often pictured, a mere luncheon club. Luncheon is merely a pleasant cement to the meeting.

Here men get to realise that boundaries dividing class and nation can easily be broken down with goodwill. These social relationships are of great value to all concerned, and to Rotary must go the credit for fostering them, especially in the East, where conditions are so cosmopolitan.

Local Flying School

THE presence in Hong Kong of the Far East Flying Training School Ltd. has brought the Colony into line with major cities throughout the world; and with its facilities for learning to fly at our very doors, many young men, both Chinese and European, have availed themselves of the opportunity to take up flying as a hobby. That it can be a most fascinating pastime is by now completely established. The only thing that stops many potential learners from taking the course is the large amount of time which must be devoted to it; but the local school has now provided the necessary facilities to permit an office-wallah to do his dual study at times most convenient for him.

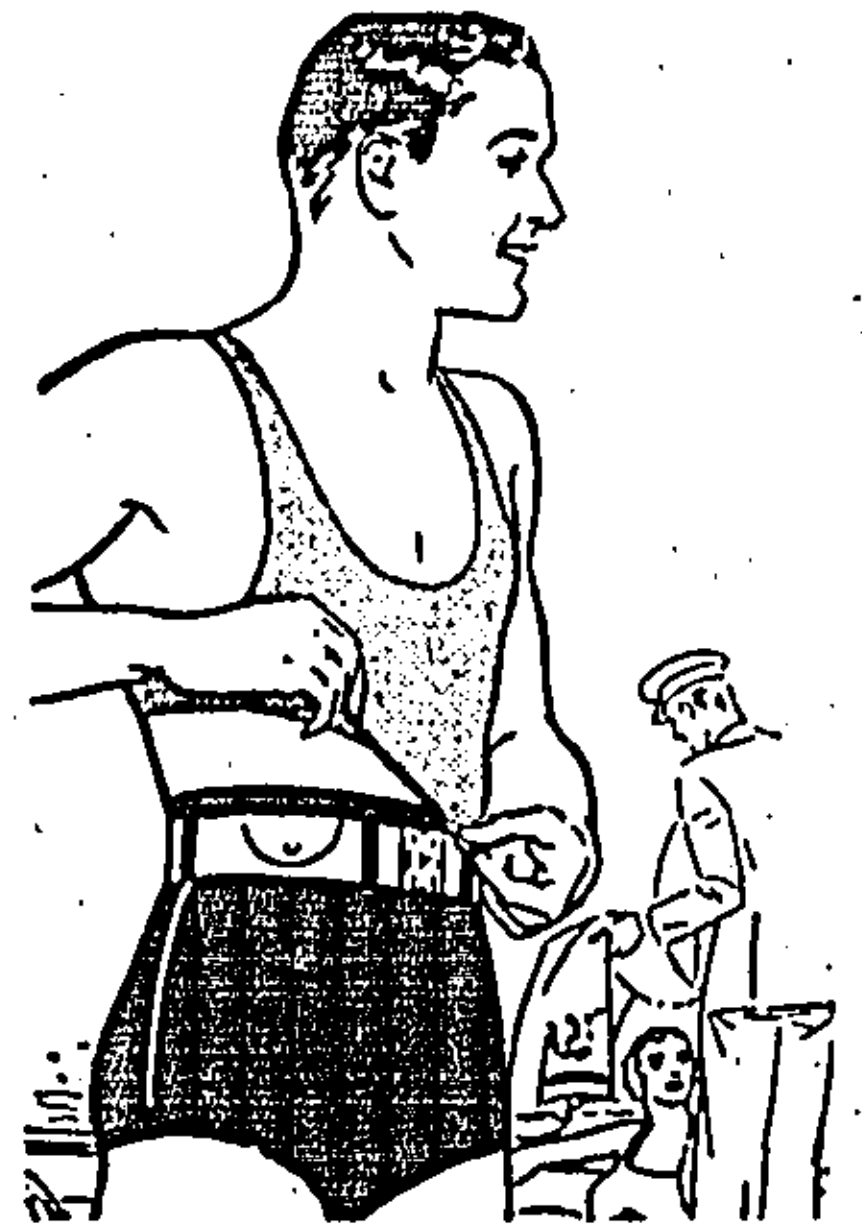

Ever since the fond father in Punch, who drew his offspring's attention to a speck in the sky with the remark: "Look at the pretty aeroplane" was thoroughly crushed with a disgusted: "Garn! It's a single-seated Bristol 'Bulldog' fighter," it has been evident that the young idea is getting more and more air-minded every day. The apathetic nonchalance with which the younger generation accepts feats which were considered almost miraculous a few years ago, will never cease to astonish older people. Air travel nowadays is a commonplace, and it will not be long before Hong Kong is placed on the air map. So that every thing which can be done to encourage practical amateur flying here deserves the fullest support. It is to be hoped that the Flying School keep their charges as moderate as possible, so as to rake in the largest number of potential clients.

Needs Of The Children

THE Foundling Hospital site in London was recently bought for a large sum to provide a playground in perpetuity for London's slum children. The wonderful response to the public appeals for the purpose showed how deeply the general public feel about the provision of adequate playing fields for children in England. That it is no less a matter for the active sympathy of the public of Hong Kong is disclosed by the activities of the Children's Playground Society's efforts in that direction, which have resulted in several such playgrounds being acquired and placed at the disposal of children in the Colony.

Recently a complaint was made in public against "naked children" bathing off the Star Ferry and Yaumati piers, with which I must confess I was not much in sympathy. The suggestion of another correspondent, that some provision should be made whereby "naked children" should be permitted to bathe in safety to their hearts' content in some properly constituted bathing-place, deserves, in my opinion, every support. It is an altogether kindly and laudable thought. Perhaps some public-spirited person will consider starting a subscription to this end; or perhaps the Children's Playgrounds Society could consider the matter within their purview and set the wheels moving. I feel sure any such project would be thoroughly well supported. After all, those who can afford it have their Lido; there is any amount of sea here for the asking. Why not a miniature "Lido" with not too much red tape about it where children sweltering in the heat could splash about to their hearts' content in the most health-giving exercise there is?

Three Race Ponies Die
THREE race ponies died during last week—Mr. Hen's Bayardo, Mr. Harold Seth's Got That, and Dr. S. N. Chan's Independence Day.

Bayardo, a 1935 griffin, was only seen out three times during the first half of the season and won on each occasion, though carrying three different jockeys. Mr. D. Black will remember him for the fact that he provided him with a very useful win in the New Zealand Handicap, when he displayed a brilliant finishing burst to beat Pacific Hall and pay a win dividend of $100.80. Mr. G. P. Ferguson rode his first winner at the Valley when Bayardo won the Customs Handicap (novice riders), and Mr. "Duffy" Davis won on him at Macao, in the Sui Tai Handicap.

Got That, a 1935 Australian, was one of Mr. Norman Deltz's regular rides. In his starts he recorded a win, five seconds, and a third. He was second to Derby Day in the Sydney Maidens and second to Cold Morning in the Rothy Hill Derby. There is little doubt that he would have been one of the favourites for the Freemantle St. Leger next November.

Independence Day, a 1935 sub, broke down in training after a promising start, and consequently went to the gate on only two occasions, running unplaced both times, in the Stonecutters Stakes and in the Sui An Handicap at Macao.

1936 Australian Subs

THE 45 Australian ponies that were ordered by the Hong Kong Jockey Club at the end of the past season are due to arrive on the s.s. Tandu on August 3. The ponies are being sent through Messrs. William A. Jones and Company Ltd., the same firm that has sent them for the past two seasons. Mr. Jones is himself supervising the shipment of the ponies. After they have been released from quarantine and have been passed by the veterinary surgeons the draws for the ponies will be made. No definite date has yet been fixed for the draws.

The Indian R.C. will lose a valuable lawn bowler if A. M. Omar, their singles champion, joins the Craigen-gower C.C., as is rumoured he will. Omar, who is a brother of U. M. Omar, former Colony champion, is one of the I.R.C. mainstays—his consistency is vouched for by the fact that he was finalist in the Club championship the year before he won the title.

I understand that S. Eccleshall, the popular Civil Service premier league lawn bowler, will not be playing in league games again this season.

Drysdale's Setback

M. Drysdale, who recently made a successful debut in the Craigen-gower Cricket Club "A" tennis team has been in hospital for a week suffering from malaria. Although he was discharged from hospital on Tuesday, it is believed that he will not be able to play serious tennis for some time to come.

The rumour that Gurbachan Singh, the Colony and Kowloon Indians' hockey centre-forward, would be seen leading the Radio Hockey Tournament has been denied. It is now definitely known that he will play for the K.I.T.C. 1934-5 Mamak champions next season.

Badminton Loss

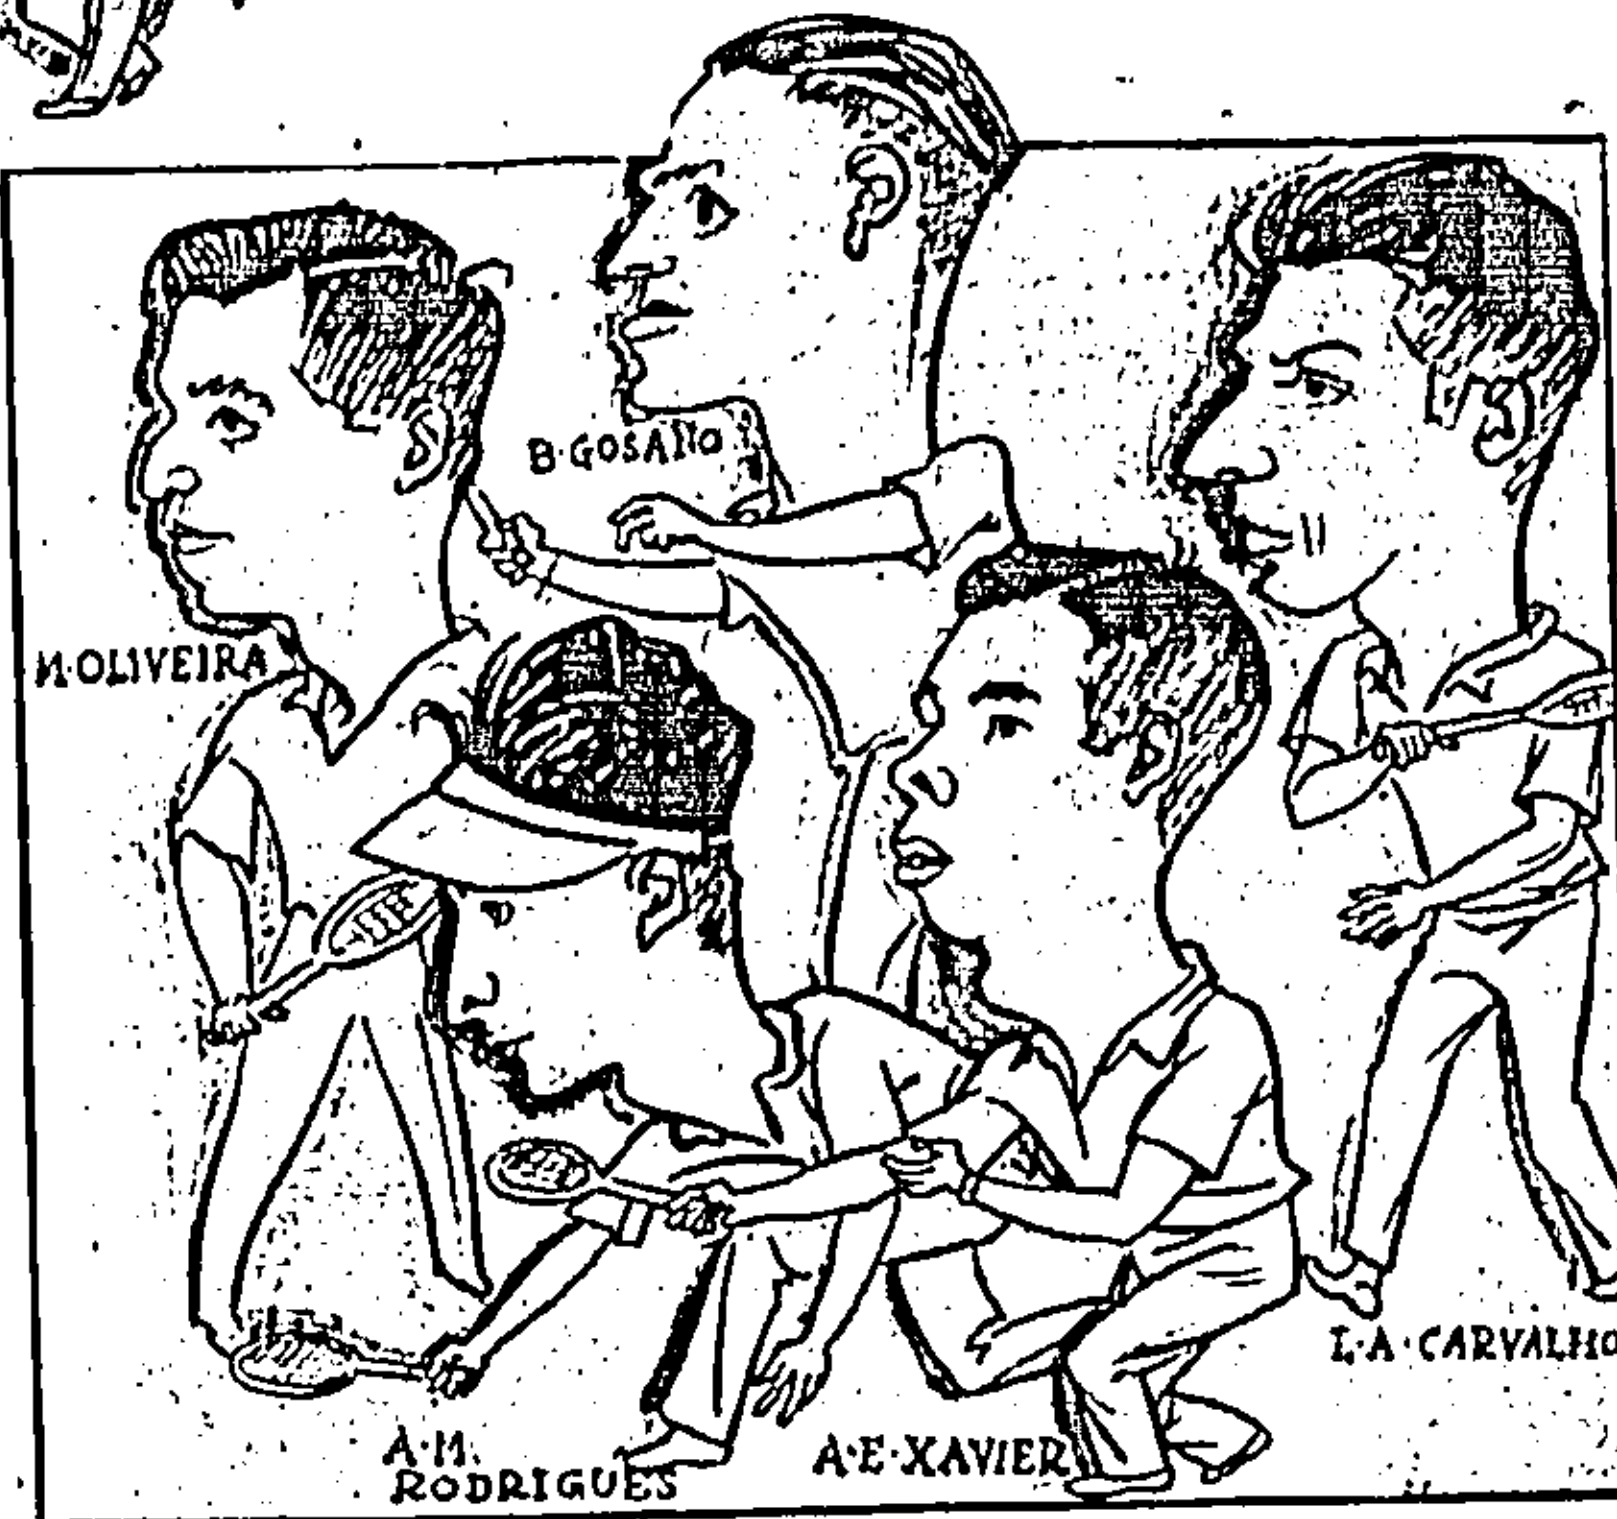

LOCAL Badminton enthusiasts will be sorry to hear that A. E. Collins, who was instrumental in forming the local Badminton League, left the Colony for good on the R. M. S. Empress of Asia on Friday last. Collins played for the Kowloon Cricket Club, where he introduced the game, and in the latter part of last season he was seen playing for the Sailors' and Soldiers' Home; he was also a very sound league tennis player at the K.C.C.

This is the second serious setback the Sailors' and Soldiers' Home have had in their badminton, the first one being the departure of G. A. Smith for Home.

Tsui Ah-fai, the Chinese Athletic centre-half, who is a cadet in the Canton Air Force, is spending his summer vacation in Amoy.

The Recreio "B" Division team which overcame the Civil Service last Wednesday—L. F. V. Ribeiro.

Unofficial Bowls Record

AN unofficial record was created by the Civil Service Juniors in their lawn bowls league encounter against the Yacht Club last Saturday. For the first, seven heads the Yacht Club failed to score on any rink, with the result that the Valley team were leading by 42 shots to 0! The final result was 72-50 in favour of the Civil Servants.

H. A. Alves and F. X. M. da Silva are named as the two most improved players among the Recreio bowlers.

L. A. Gutierrez, donor of the Gutierrez Shield and former Colony champion, is the present holder of the Recreio Singles championship, but he will have to fight hard to retain it this year with so many improved players in the Club.

A. A. Remedios is considered as one of the finest No. 1's among the Recreio bowlers just now, and if he maintains past form is certain to be considered when the Portuguese international rink is being selected.

By the Judge

Police Soccer Preparations

THE Police football team, who were the runners-up in both the Senior League and the Senior Shield competitions last year, have already begun to make preparations for the coming season.

At a meeting held recently the following were elected officials for the ensuing year.

Chairman—The Hon. Mr. D. Burroughs, Acting Inspector General of Police.

Captain—H. Gough

Vice-Captain—G. Blackburn

Trainer—G. W. Clarke

Hon. Secretary—J. Shepherd.

Committee—W. A. Thompson

A.S.P., W. Gowans and T. G. Stokes.

J. Shepherd will be the Club's representative on the Football Council.

The Police are entering the First Division this year while the Chinese Police will again join the Third Division. A second team will be entered in the Junior Shield and it is proposed to arrange friendly games with the different Clubs during the season so that the Junior Shield team may have the necessary practice.

There is a rumour that H. Gough, the Police soccer captain and centre-half, will be non-playing skipper throughout the coming season, and that he is taking over the training of the Police Chinese team.

C. S. Parker, the Police and Colony left-half, will be unable to play football for several seasons owing to the broken ankle he received when playing against the Club in a league match at the end of last season. He was also one of the leading Police hockey players, having been given interport trials and having represented England in the International Hockey Tournament.

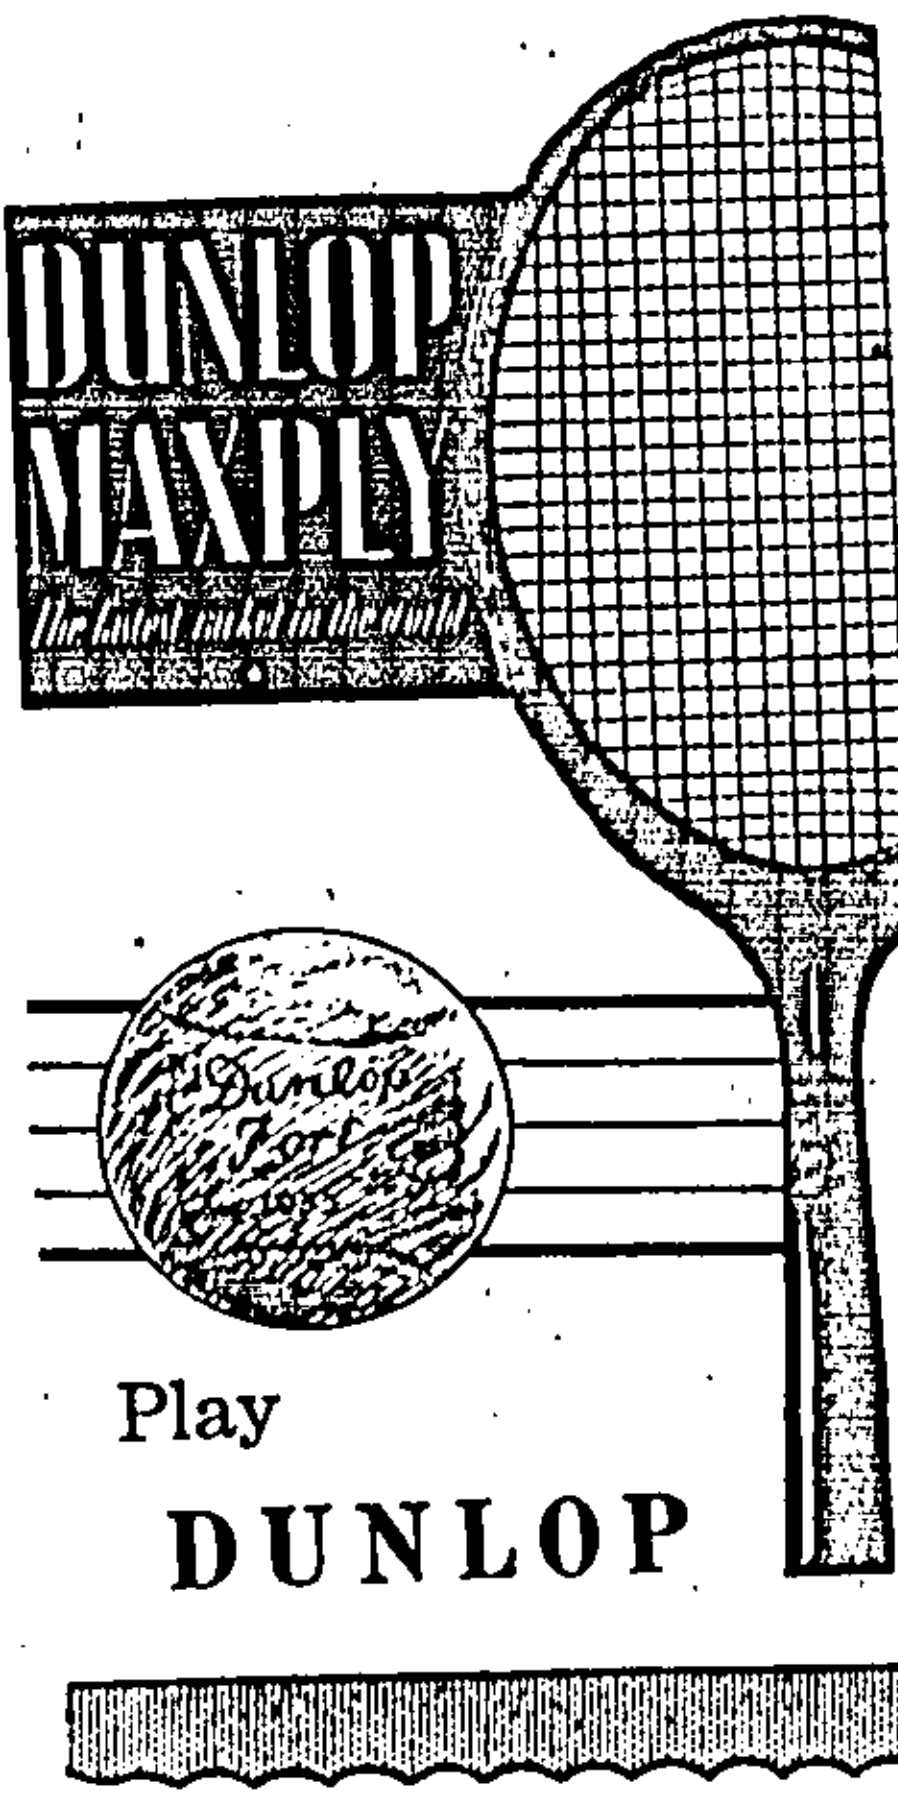

C.S.C. Bowls Losses

THE Civil Service will be losing nearly a dozen bowling stalwarts at the end of this season, and it is feared that the Club will only be able to enter one team in the League next year. Among those who are leaving for Home are A. W. Grimitt, R. R. Davies, A. O. Brown, S. Eccleshall, J. Denkin, E. Simmonds, T. Armstrong, J. Purvis, and S. Alderman.

Following the All-Malayan Chinese Olympiad, I understand the Chinese Football Clubs in Malaya are contemplating sending a team to compete at the National Games in Shanghai on October 10.

YVONNE'S ODD MOMENTS

Four out of the five Dionne Quintuplets are quiet, peaceful, and dignified, but Yvonne just cannot keep still—and she gets into the most terrible tangles with her cot. Top right, in a bobble-eating mood.

Still the Quins go on growing—they weigh nearly 17 lbs. each—still their bank balances go on swelling—and still the prosperity they have brought to the whole district around Callender, in Ontario, continues to increase. Cafes, hotels, and tea-shops are gay with new paint; a new road has almost been completed—all done in the past few months, and all thanks to the Quintuplets. The 3,500 tourists who came to see them last year are likely, it is said, to become 25,000 this year. Here you see the Quins learning the use of their limbs.

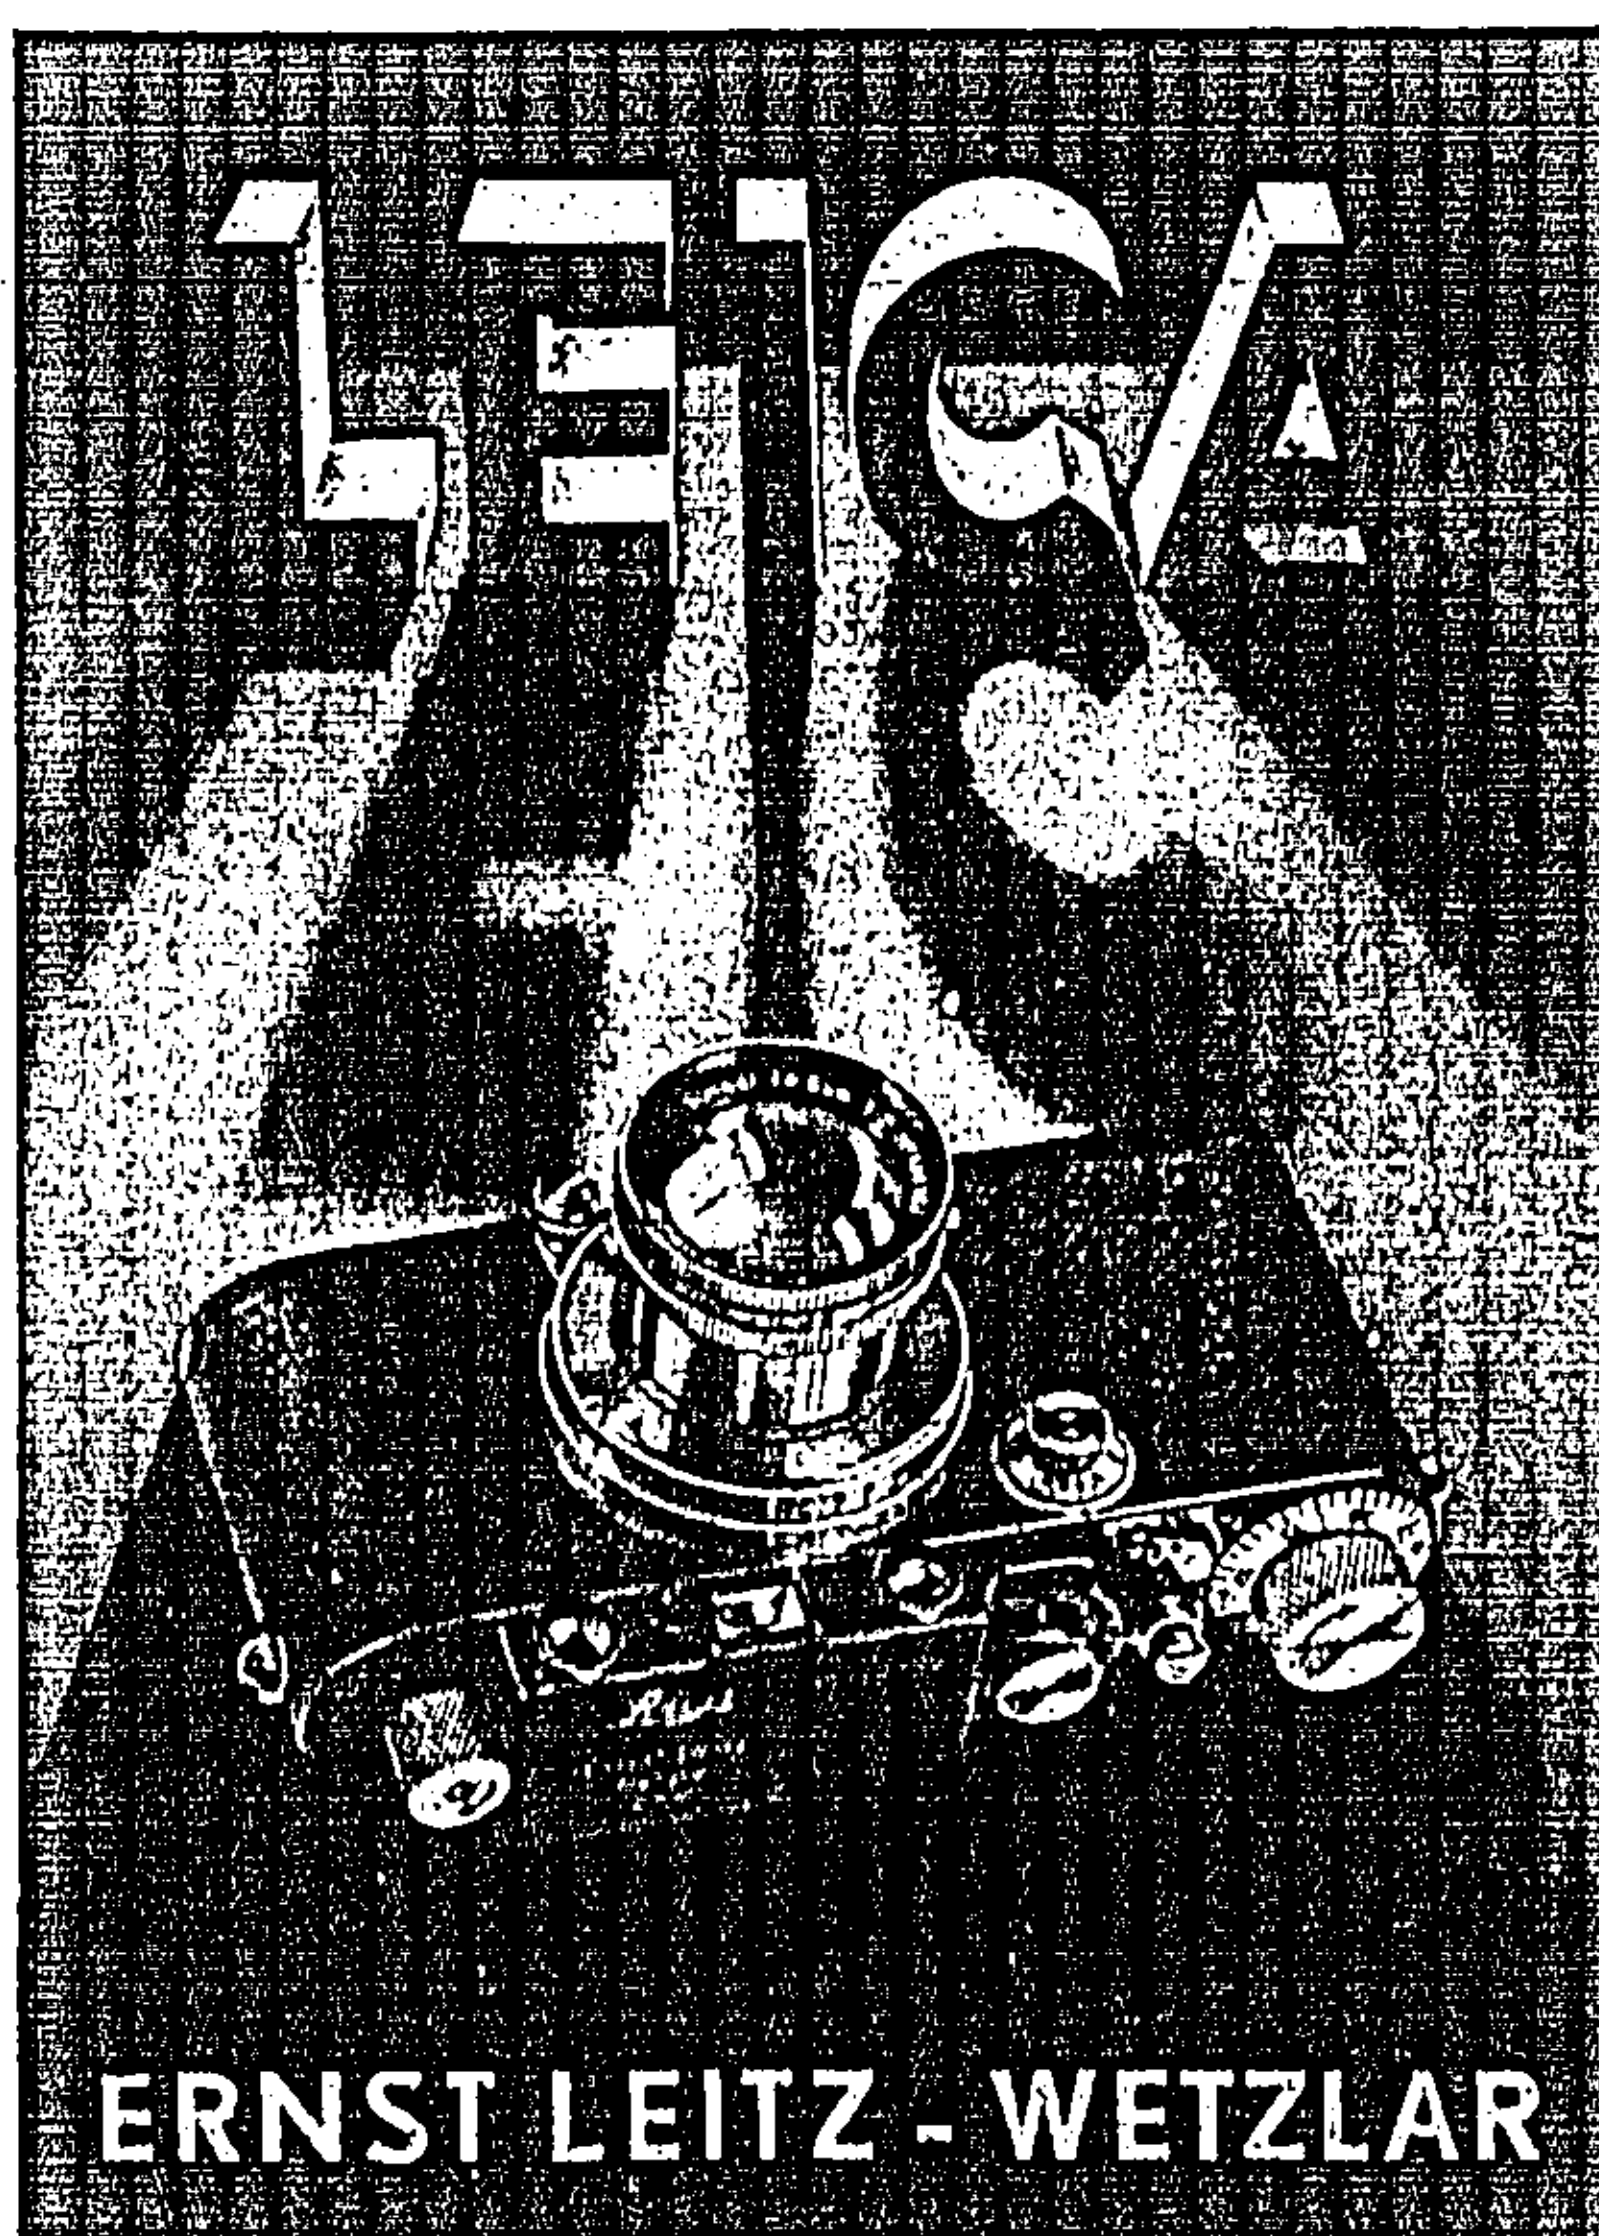

(Lower Left)—"Here, ladies and gentlemen, I have in my right hand a most interesting object—the foot of a Quintuplet." Marie is proud of her foot-holding accomplishment and will always demonstrate for spectators. (Lower Centre)—A stiff work-out every morning—leg and arm exercises in equal spells—forms part of the ordered routine of a Quin's life. This one, by the way, is Annette.

WORLD'S RICHEST GIRL PAYS VISIT TO HONG KONG

Modest & Unassuming Nature

MR. CROMWELL TALKS ON WORLD CONDITIONS

Mrs. Doris Duke Cromwell, heiress to the James B. Duke tobacco millions, does not hate reporters. In fact, she does not hate anybody at all. She is just shy. This was expressed by James Cromwell, her husband, who arrived with her on the s.s. President Grant last Friday, in the course of their extended honeymoon trip around the world.

"Mrs. Cromwell has never been interviewed before," said Mr. Cromwell. "This is not because she hates reporters. It is because she was brought up as a modest and unassuming girl and publicity troubles her."

Although not much was said of her present activities, it was understood that Mrs. Cromwell is the benefactress of several charitable institutions in the United States.

Mrs. Cromwell is much travelled but she has never met President Franklin D. Roosevelt. Her husband has, however, and predicts that he will be re-elected for a further term of office.

Views On Japan

Speaking of the Japanese penetration of China, Mr. Cromwell expressed the opinion that Japan could not be blamed for her actions, as other countries had done the same themselves before. He said, however, that if Japan continued to oust British and American interests in Manchuria, as she had done already, these two countries would have no alternative but to come to an agreement whereby they could employ economic sanctions against Japan.

Mr. Cromwell was most enthusiastic about the benefits of British rule in the Colonies. While in India he had met Mahatma Gandhi and had had a discussion on the merits and defects of machine civilisation and primitive civilisation. Gandhi adhered to the belief that the only way India would prosper would be by returning to primitive methods of production. "And this, of course," Mr. Cromwell concluded, "is perfectly ridiculous."

Leaving For Canton

Mr. and Mrs. Cromwell will leave on Monday for Canton. They originally intended to fly from Canton to Nanking, but they have changed their plans and will now fly to Shanghai only. When they reach Nanking Mr. Cromwell is going to discuss the financial and economic conditions of China with the Finance Minister, Dr. Wellington Koo, and prominent American bankers and financiers.

Mr. Cromwell believes that if the country were to sell gold and buy silver it would thereby bring down the purchasing power of gold and also raise international commodity prices.

Mr. Cromwell is opposed to all forms of autocracy and consequently has little or no admiration for either Premier Mussolini or Reichsfuehrer Hitler.

"When did I meet Mrs. Cromwell?" he was asked when the conversation drifted back to his wife. "I knew her six years before our marriage. Our families, however, have been friends even longer than that. So, you see, Doris was an old friend of mine before I married her."

Enjoyed Trip

They have enjoyed their trip around the world, said Mrs. Cromwell. Bali, however, with its South Sea beauty and its "nature in the raw" fascinated them. They also like the Philippines and the Walled City gave them a thrill.

"You want to meet Mrs. Cromwell, I suppose?" asked Mr. Cromwell.

Mrs. Cromwell, young and tall and slender and dressed in white with a small tight-fitting hat, which tilted upward on the left side, approached and smiled. Does she hate reporters? Her smile said no.

PERSONALS

MRS. I. H. Geare has recently returned to the Colony from England with her two younger children, Eleanor and Peter. After seven years absence overseas they'll have to start getting acclimatised all over again. Summer is a bad time to start, of course, but after being away for so long Mrs. Geare was probably only too anxious to get back to her husband, who is with the Standard-Vacuum Oil Company.

Two Departures

Mr. F. H. Barnes, the Club de Recreio representative on the Football Council, and Mrs. Barnes left on a short vacation yesterday by the Taiyo Maru.

Mrs. Barnes has not been enjoying the best of health recently and it is hoped the change will do her good.

Mrs. Binnie Arrives Back

Mrs. G. M. Binnie has just returned to Hong Kong after two months' holiday in Indo China, Singapore, and Manila. She was particularly impressed with Cambodia.

Mrs. Bowes-Smith In England

Mrs. A. M. Bowes-Smith arrived in England last Wednesday, where she has gone to visit her children. All Hong Kong knows the Bowes-Smith couple for their musical talents.

Miss Braga's Distinction

Mr. Wm. Anderson, local secretary of the Trinity College of Music, has been informed that Miss Caroline Braga, L.T.C.L., daughter of the Hon. Mr. J. P. Braga, O.B.E., has been awarded the Diploma of Fellowship of the Trinity College of Music.

Miss Braga has passed the Senior and Higher Local Divisions of the College and has been awarded the Diplomas of Associate and Licentiate.

Several years ago, when Mr. Mallison, F.T.C.L., opened a centre in Hong Kong for the Trinity College, scholarships were offered yearly. Caroline Braga enjoyed the distinction of gaining the first scholarships awarded in Hong Kong by the Trinity College of London for the Senior and Higher Local Divisions.

Having already received her L.T.C.L. and A.T.C.L., she is to be congratulated on her recent success in receiving the final degree of Fellow of the Trinity College of London (F.T.C.L.).

Miss Caroline Braga is associated with her sister, Miss Jean Braga, in music teaching in Hong Kong.

Madam Masson Returning

Music lovers will be interested to hear that Madam Madalah Masson, who made so many friends in Hong Kong during her recent short visit, is passing through the Colony next week on route to South Africa to fulfil a concert tour programme. Since leaving Hong Kong, Madame Masson has given very successful broadcasting and concert recitals in Japan where she finds a marked growing interest in and appreciation for Western music. Madam Masson is expected to give a concert in November on her return from her South African tour.

Mr. Rubinstein Due Wednesday

Mr. Arthur Rubinstein, the noted Polish pianist, who recently gave a very successful concert in Hong Kong, will be returning here from Manila on Wednesday by the General Sherman and will give another recital at the Hong Kong Hotel the same evening.

Departures By Grant

The following left Hong Kong by the s.s. President Grant on Friday for Seattle and Victoria, via ports:

Mr. K. O. Chan, Mr. and Mrs. J. Ward, Master Tong, Mr. E. Solfridge, Mr. Lau Po Cho, Mrs. Tan, Mr. V. M. Halmovitch, Miss G. Vidgal, Dr. (Continued on Page 14)

DISSOLUTION OF STEEL HELMETS IN GERMANY

Contempt For Party Formations

AUTHORITATIVE ACTION BY MANY STATES

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL
Berlin, Yesterday.
Following closely on the heels of the recent dissolution of the local branches of the National Socialist German Front Fighters' League, formerly the Steel Helmets, in Baden and Brunswick, it is now announced that under the Reich President's decree of 1933 for the protection of the State and people, all branches of that organisation have been dissolved and its property confiscated in the administrative districts of Breslau, Liegnitz, Oppeln and the Prussian province of Silesia.

Similar measures have been taken by the authorities in Thuringia, where, according to an official announcement, several of the leading members of the Front Fighters' League have been taken into custody and interned in a concentration camp at Bad Sulza.

Party Dress Prohibited

A decree has been furthermore issued by the Thuringian Home Minister forbidding the wearing of badges, uniform or dress indicating membership of the Steel Helmet organisation, prohibiting all meetings and rallies of that organisation, as well as the displaying of the organisation's flags on buildings.

The decree states that these measures may be attributed to actions directed against the authority of the State, to the circulation of false reports calculated to discredit the State, as well as to the holding of some of the party formations up to contempt."—Trans-Ocean Service.

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

TWO SOLDIERS REMANDED IN GAOL CUSTODY

PRIVATE Cyril William Crompton and Private George Chapman of C Company, the Lincolnshire Regiment, stationed at Shamshupo, were charged at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday morning with the manslaughter of Haida Khan, an ex-police guard, of No. 7 Police Station, in Shanghai Street on Friday afternoon.

Second Lieutenant P. G. Wormell, who appeared as the representative of the Lincolnshire Regiment, told Mr. Wynne Jones that he had been instructed by the Officer in Command of the Regiment to ask that the defendants be returned to military custody, and he would guarantee their safe return to Court.

Detective-Inspector Doring, of the Yau-mat Police Station, who was in charge of the prosecution, strongly opposed this, saying that the charge was of a very serious nature.

Lt. Wormell then said that the objection of the Officer in Command, and also of the Head Quarters of the China Command, was that they thought that men in the King's Uniform should not be in a civil gaol.

Mr. Wynne Jones then said that he agreed with Inspector Doring and thought that the men could be permitted to change into civilian clothes before going to prison.

At this stage a short adjournment was given for the officer to get in touch with his Commanding Officer and tell him of the magistrate's decision. When he returned he said that it had been decided that it would be all right if the men were permitted to change their clothes.

At Inspector Doring's request the defendants were remanded in gaol custody for seven days.

25 YEARS' DISTINGUISHED SERVICE TO COLONY

Mr. Charles Douglas Lambert, Chief Mechanical Engineer of the British section of the Kowloon-Canton Railway, is going on leave on Tuesday next prior to retirement, after 25 years of official life in the Colony. Mr. Lambert, who holds the rank of Major in the Regular Army Reserve of Officers and Ordnance Mechanical Engineer in the Royal Army Ordnance Corps, is a member of the Institute of Mechanical Engineers, of the Institute of Transport and of the Institute of Locomotive Engineers.

Mr. Lambert received his technical education at Durham College of Science, Newcastle-on-Tyne, and with the London North Eastern (Continued on Page 14)

TSALDARIS RETAINS PREMIERSHIP

KONDYLIS AS HIS RIGHT HAND MAN

ELABORATE PRECAUTIONS TO PREVENT DISORDERS

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL
Athens, Yesterday.

THE dissension which had arisen within the Cabinet over the question of the restoration of the monarchy led yesterday to the collective resignation of the Tsaldaris Government after the War Minister, General Kondylis, and the Minister of Agriculture, M. Theotokis, had threatened to resign owing to the Premier's refusal to commit himself on the question of the restoration.

Since all the efforts to induce these two Ministers to reconsider their decision proved unavailing the Premier insisted on collective resignation. President Zaimis then commissioned M. Tsaldaris to form a new Government.

The eventual changes in the Cabinet will probably throw some light on the much debated question of whether the plebiscite, originally fixed for November 15, will be held as per schedule or put off for the time being.

The Cabinet crisis is giving rise to many alarming rumours, General Kondylis being, for instance, credited with the intention of carrying out the restoration by force and with the aid of the commander of the air fleet, General Keppas, and the Chief of Staff of the Navy, Admiral Economoff. These rumours, however, are discounted in well-informed circles.

The prevailing nervous tension, however, is such that M. Tsaldaris saw fit to announce yesterday afternoon that measures had been taken in order to nip in the bud any attempt to create disorders. — Trans-Ocean Service.

PREMIER'S OUTBURST

"I shall form a Government according to my conceptions, I alone being responsible for public affairs," declared M. Tsaldaris, the Greek Prime Minister.

General Kondylis, the Greek Minister of War, who favours the maintenance of the republic, informed the press that he supports the Government even if he does not join it.

It was expected that a new Parliament would be formed last evening without a hitch. Probably M. Tsaldaris would take the War Ministry in addition to the Premiership.

According to press reports, the plebiscite will be held in August in order to hasten the settlement of the question of the regime. — Reuters.

COLLABORATION CERTAIN
A later message states that after conversations last evening between M. Tsaldaris, the Premier, and General Kondylis, Minister of War, it seems certain that the latter will collaborate with the Government, and consequently instead of the collective resignation of the Cabinet there will merely be a re-shuffling. — Reuters.

CABINET REORGANISATION
A later message from Athens states that after a lengthy meeting the reorganisation of the Cabinet was completed, with M. Tsaldaris as Premier, General Kondylis as Vice-Premier and War Minister, and M. Maximos as Foreign Minister.

The retention of General Kondylis in the Cabinet is regarded as a victory for the Royalists, making the prospects of the restoration of the monarchy more likely. — Reuters.

CHINESE BITTEN BY DOG

KEEP HONG KONG BRITISH

LOCAL RESIDENT WINS PRIZE

Mr. Bernard Sweeney, of the Military Hospital, Hong Kong, was awarded a second prize by the Picturegoer Weekly Magazine, for a letter on "British films in Hong Kong, under the heading of "Keep Hong Kong British."

The following was the letter as it appeared in the magazine, dated June 29:—

I have just seen the British film King's Cup. It is the first aviation film I believe England has made, that is, wholly dealing with the air as its subject. The aerial scenes were realistic and the picture was altogether thrilling. British films must keep this up.

In Hong Kong we get a very poor percentage of British films, and this is deplorable, considering the island is British. Hollywood seems to dominate everywhere. The Chinese population, all the cinemas to capacity even when a British film is showing, and they enjoy it. We, on foreign service, want more British films to remind us of Old England.

WHAT IS RELIGION? CHRIST TEACHES THAT IT IS DUTY DOING THE WILL OF GOD

(By The Rev. J. N. Lewis Bryan)

WHAT is religion?

How often do people ask that question, in perplexity and almost in despair. Not at all in the spirit of Pilate, who asked that other immortal question, but waited not for an answer, but because they really and truly want to know. There may be a falling off in religion outwardly, but in our innermost hearts it is always there.

Well, if we go to Christ with that question, there cannot be much doubt about the answer that He would give. "Religion," He would say, "is to do your duty."

I am not for one moment saying that that is all that Our Lord has taught us about religion. He came into the world as the great Revealer of God: to show us what He was really like; that He was Our Father and Friend; to teach us the spirit and manner in which God should be worshipped; to throw light upon this present life and to give us hope for that which is yet to come; to teach us about faith and prayer and many other things which we rightly associate with religion.

What Does Christ Teach?

But if we were asked to say what—reduced to its simplest terms—is the real aim and substance of all His teaching, we should be bound to answer that it is to care much and to care always for doing our duty.

"Not everyone," He taught, "that saith unto Me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven: but he that doeth the will of My Father which is in heaven."

The woman in the crowd, who, mistaking sentiment for religion, cried, "Blessed is the womb that bare Thee," drew from Him the uncompromising statement, "Yea, rather, blessed are they who hear the word of God and keep it."

Then we remember the lawyer who asked Him what he should do to inherit eternal life, being told—as was the rich young ruler—to keep the Commandments. And the essence of the parable with which He drove this answer home, is that the Good Samaritan is the man who, first and foremost, is found doing what he sees to be his duty, in contrast to the Priest and Levite, whose religion is of a different kind.

Religion Is Duty

Nor was it by teaching only that He declared that duty is religion, and religion is duty; He showed it by the example of His whole life. It was the very hallmark of His character. Not even the certainty of death could make Him swerve one inch from the pathway where duty led Him. In fact the spirit of His whole life is a protest against any other idea of religion. "My meat," He once said, "is to do the will of Him that sent Me, and to finish His work." Many men might have said those words. He alone carried them out.

ried them into action. Even though He knew what was awaiting Him, He steadfastly set His face to go up to Jerusalem, to Calvary and a Cross outside that city wall. And in almost the last glimpse we have of Him, that night in the moonlit Garden of Gethsemane, we find Him turning to face His duty, knowing what the cost was going to be: for religion is to do the will of God.

It is not without significance that the Church Catechism, (of which we hear so little these days) has made the ten Commandments the central point of its teaching, and that when the child is asked, "What dost thou chiefly learn by these Commandments?" he is taught to reply "I learn... my duty." In fact we should be scarcely wrong in stating that the pith of that Catechism lies in the familiar (but often misquoted) words, "To do my duty in that state of life unto which it shall please God to call me."

Externals Of Religion

The truth of the matter is that people become so utterly occupied with what might be called the accessories of religion that they lose sight of this central truth. That was what was chiefly wrong with the Pharisees of Our Lord's day. They paid their tithes with unflinching regularity, but omitted the weightier matters of the Law. They were capable of telling their aged parents that any money they had was "Corban" (i.e., earmarked for the collection at church) and therefore was not available for such a thing as the support of parents, however aged or needy!

We are rightly indignant with the Priest and Levite who were so preoccupied with their religious observance that they could disregard their plain and obvious duty of helping a wounded fellow-creature lying by the roadside. Nothing is so odd and strange as the way, in which human minds sometimes seem to work, enabling them to mistake the shadow for the substance of religion.

Our Duty Towards God

If the first and foremost result of our religion is not to make us see what is our duty, and then to go and do it, there is something fundamentally wrong with it. In fact it isn't religion at all.

On the other hand, we are all familiar with the person who says, "I am not religious by nature, and I don't see that those who profess to be so are much better than I am, so I am content to lead as good a life as I can. I do my duty and let others find what pleasure they can in going to church and so on."

It must however, be pointed out that duty begins with our duty towards God, and that part of that duty—and a very essential part—is to "worship Him and give Him thanks... to call upon Him, and to honour His Holy Name." So many people entirely overlook that fact, and seem to imagine that their duty begins and ends with their neighbour. When you come to think of it, our nearest and greatest neighbour is God! Closer is He than breathing, nearer than hands and feet.

Nothing that is called Christianity or religion is of any value whatsoever except in so far as it helps us to do our duty: and it is more than a little sad that there should be so many people who, sidered as high as that of the doctor, banker, clergyman or lawyer. A qualified life insurance salesman must be able to give as good advice to his clients as any of those employed in the other professions mentioned above. In fact there is no more agreeable profession for a man of true ideals and a high conception of human welfare.

What better can such a man do for his fellow creatures than show them how to save and be safe with life insurance? What better calling can one enter than that of helping one's fellow man to protect his home and his loved ones?

Unfortunately the business of life insurance, like all businesses operated by human beings, must of necessity have some weaknesses, and the public is still suffering from some Agents who place their gain before that of their policyholders or would-be clients; but these Agents are gradually eradicating themselves from the business through their own methods, and there is a great opportunity to-day for men of the highest ideals, who are willing to work as a power for good in their respective communities.

It is such men as these who are needed to restore public confidence and the Companies are now in a better position to select such representatives than they were in the past.

FAR EAST HEALTH REPORT

Two cases of smallpox in Shanghai, 2 in Hongkong and 3 in Singapore were reported during the week ended July 13, while Bombay in the same period reported 23 cases and Calcutta 15. Calcutta also reported 164 cases of cholera.

Apparently, mistake the practice of religion—such things as worship and creed and sacrament—for ends in themselves. They are simply means—means to one single and definite end; that of enabling us better to do our duty to God, our fellow-men, and lastly to ourselves.

The Passing Hour

longed the agony; for there was never a pardon. His grandson rushed the whole lot of modern inventions at once on to the scene, especially the motor-car, and he was simply wiped out.

FRENCH EXPERIENCE

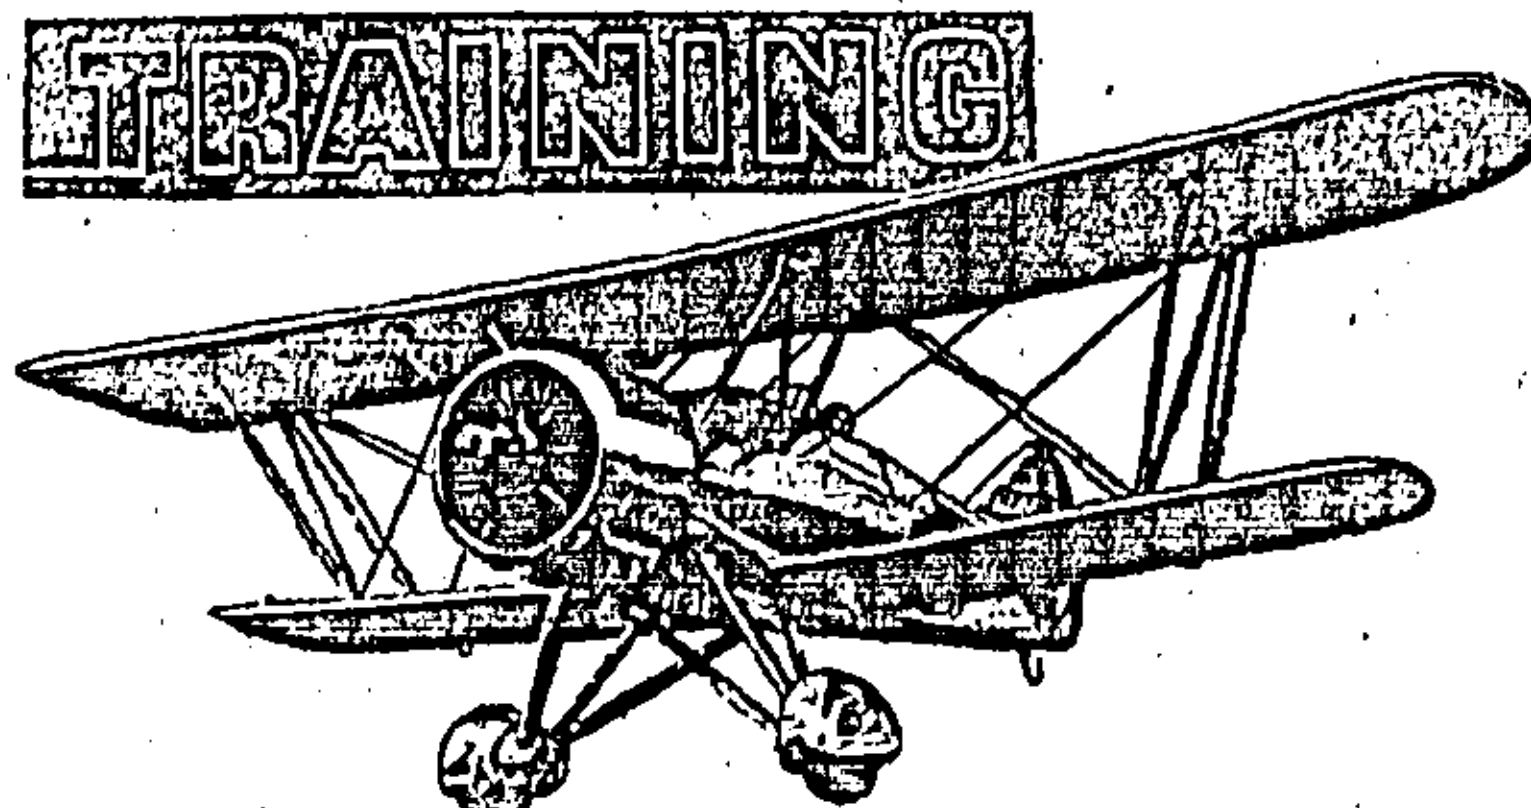

THE French have had no more success. The King of Morocco, on returning to his own country, very soon had his finances in disorder. He also bought endless cars, many of which he never used. The Khedive Abbas went back to Egypt very pro-French undoubtedly, but so unbalanced that he was useless either to his tutors or to his own people.

Surely there is something quite wrong with our educational system, when it is considered reasonable to build a top floor of culture on a foundation that is utterly alien? The Indian Chiefs' College has had better success, for although even there too much effort is made to give an Etonian training, the very fact of remaining in India is some amelioration. African Chiefs and their sons show the same results. I remember meeting one who had come back from the College at Rhyll in North Wales and started to train African natives to be as different as possible from their relatives, who was so intolerably humiliated that much self-restraint was needed to refrain from banging him on the head every time he spoke.

DEDUCTIONS

ONE deduction can quite safely be made. These victims of an entirely alien education do not acquire any fondness for the country that has trained them. The fierces assailants of English rule in India are men who have been trained in England. It may be a blow to our self-esteem, but it is a fact that these exotics return with a most hearty contempt for us and our ways, such as they would never develop in their own land.

FOOD POISONING

Months' Old Cuttlefish Responsible?

Suffering from food poisoning, three Chinese males, Ng Lam-ke, Ng Yin, and Ng Yiu, were admitted to the Kowloon Hospital on Friday night.

After finishing their evening meal they suddenly fell ill. According to one of the men, they bought some cuttlefish a few months ago, and cooked some of it with the melon they usually eat with their meal. The fish is suspected to be the cause of their sudden illness.

The three are reported to be progressing favourably.

One of Injured American Seamen Leaves by Grant

Seaman William Egner, who was involved in the accident on the s.s. President Jackson on June 15, caused by the falling of the life-boat, which was being sent to the rescue of a Chinese who jumped overboard 90 miles out of Hong Kong, is still lying in the Kowloon Hospital suffering from two fractures of the spine.

Originally there were four men in hospital, but two were discharged within a week of their entry. The third sailed in the hospital ward of the s.s. President Grant at midnight on Friday. He was suffering from a chipped vertebra. It will be remembered that a life boat was being lowered over the side of the ship and suddenly slipped, and fell 20 feet to the water. The four men were knocked unconscious, while the boat was smashed to bits. Egner received his injuries by falling across a seat. It is not yet certain when he will be leaving the hospital.

N. Y. K. OFFICIAL'S TRANSFER

Mr. Hirakawa Leaves For Yokohama

POPULAR JAPANESE RESIDENT

The Passenger Department of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha lost one of its most popular members yesterday when Mr. M. Hirakawa, accompanied by his wife and two children, left the Colony on transfer to Yokohama.

On Wednesday morning Mr. Hirakawa was the recipient of a silver junk as a token of appreciation from his colleagues in the Passenger Department. The presentation was made by Mr. Kojima.

Mr. Hirakawa was also a member of the Kowloon Union Church choir until about six months ago, when he left the mainland to reside on the island.

He is now being transferred to the passenger department of the N.Y.K. office in Yokohama. His successor, Mr. S. Kawakatsu, of the Shanghai office, arrived in the Colony on Thursday last by the m.v. Torukuni Maru.

During the next two years this source will be supplemented to the degree necessary by the direct entry of young men of secondary school education.

The method of application, age limit, and period of service will be the same as those given above for short service officer candidates.

They will receive pay and allowances in cash or kind equivalent to £200 at the outset and increasing to £270 per annum on qualifying as pilots, and will be entitled on passing to the reserve at the end of their active list service to a gratuity at the rate of £25 for each year of such service after the first year.

Maintenance Men

An entry of about 1,300 men a quarter (in addition to the normal entry of aircraft apprentices) is required for duties in connection with the maintenance of aircraft. As many as possible of these should be men with a basic training in fitting in civil life.

Men so qualified and under 42 years of age are invited to apply in writing or in person to the R.A.F. recruiting depot, Victory House, Kingsway, W.C.

If accepted after trade tests they will be enlisted for six years' service on the active list and will be entitled, in addition to free accommodation, clothing, and rations, to pay at the rate of 8s. 6d., 4s. 3d. or 5s. 6d. a day according to the degree of qualification they show on passing out of the initial period of about one year's training.

Training As Mates

While under training they will receive pay at the rate of 3s. 6d. a day in addition to accommodation.

In addition to these men, who are skilled fitters in civil life, men of superior intelligence will be considered on application to the R.A.F. recruiting depot for acceptance for training as mates, flight mechanics or flight riggers, preference for selection being given to those with mechanical experience.

Those accepted, who must be over 18 and under 32 years of age, will be enlisted for six years' service on the active list and will pass through a short course of elementary training as mates.

The best of these will go on to a longer course to qualify either as flight mechanic or flight rigger. Rates of pay in this section will vary from 2s. while training, to 6s. a day.

In addition to the normal entry of boys, about 400 more every three months will be required from secondary schools to train as armourers, wireless operators or photographers. The entry age in this class is from over 17 to 32 years.

Aircraft Hands

They will enlist for six years with pay varying from 2s. while training, to 5s. a day.

In addition, also, large numbers of unskilled men over 18 and under 26 will be accepted as aircraft hands.

To secure an adequate body of experienced tradesmen who have passed to the reserve or been discharged a provision for a further service of four years for this branch of men has been made, and it is hoped will be taken.

oldest colleges in Japan, Mr. Hirakawa has been a member of the staff of the N.Y.K. for well over 15 years, 7 years and 10 months of which have been spent in the Colony.

Keen Photographer

A very keen amateur photographer, Mr. Hirakawa won the first prize in the open Amateur Photography section of the Hong Kong University competition soon after his arrival in the Colony. He was also a member of the Japanese Choral Society which existed in the Colony some time ago, but which was disbanded on the departure for Shanghai of Mr. H. Aclio, the then Acting-Consul-General for Japan.

Mr. Hirakawa was also a member of the Kowloon Union Church choir until about six months ago, when he left the mainland to reside on the island.

He is now being transferred to the passenger department of the N.Y.K. office in Yokohama.

His successor, Mr. S. Kawakatsu, of the Shanghai office, arrived in the Colony on Thursday last by the m.v. Torukuni Maru.

Revenge, where he served until May 1921, when he became Assistant to the Director of Naval Ordnance at the Admiralty. In July 1923 he returned to H.M.S. Revenge as Commander, she being then the flagship of Rear-Admiral (Sir) Howard Kelly and subsequently fleet flagship of Admiral Sir Henry Oliver, C-in-C. of the Atlantic Fleet. He served as Commander of Revenge until December 1925, when he was promoted Captain.

Captain Sedgwick was next appointed Deputy Director of the Gunnery Division of the Naval Staff of the Admiralty, where he remained just two years, after which he commanded the 3rd Destroyer Flotilla, in H.M.S. Keppel, in the Mediterranean until June 1930, returning then for a period of two years to Devonport, as commander of the Gunnery School. This was followed by two years' service in H.M.S. Berwick, and his subsequent appointment in April of the present year to the post of Commodore, Hong Kong.

Commodore Sedgwick was serving on H.M.S. Revenge at the time of the Armistice and witnessed the sinking of the surrendered German Fleet at Scapa Flow.

In 1909 the Commodore married the daughter of Capt. L. S. Dawson, R.N. They have one son, now a Sub-Lieutenant on the Royal Navy.

Railway at the locomotive works in Gateshead-on-Tyne and Darlington. His association with Hong Kong began in November, 1910, when he was appointed acting Locomotive Superintendent of the Kowloon-Canton Railway. In 1916, he was seconded for military service in the Great War, being given a commission as full Lieutenant Ordnance Mechanical Engineer. After a distinguished career in France Mr. Lambert was transferred home in December, 1918, and appointed acting Chief Ordnance Mechanical Engineer to the Northern Command.

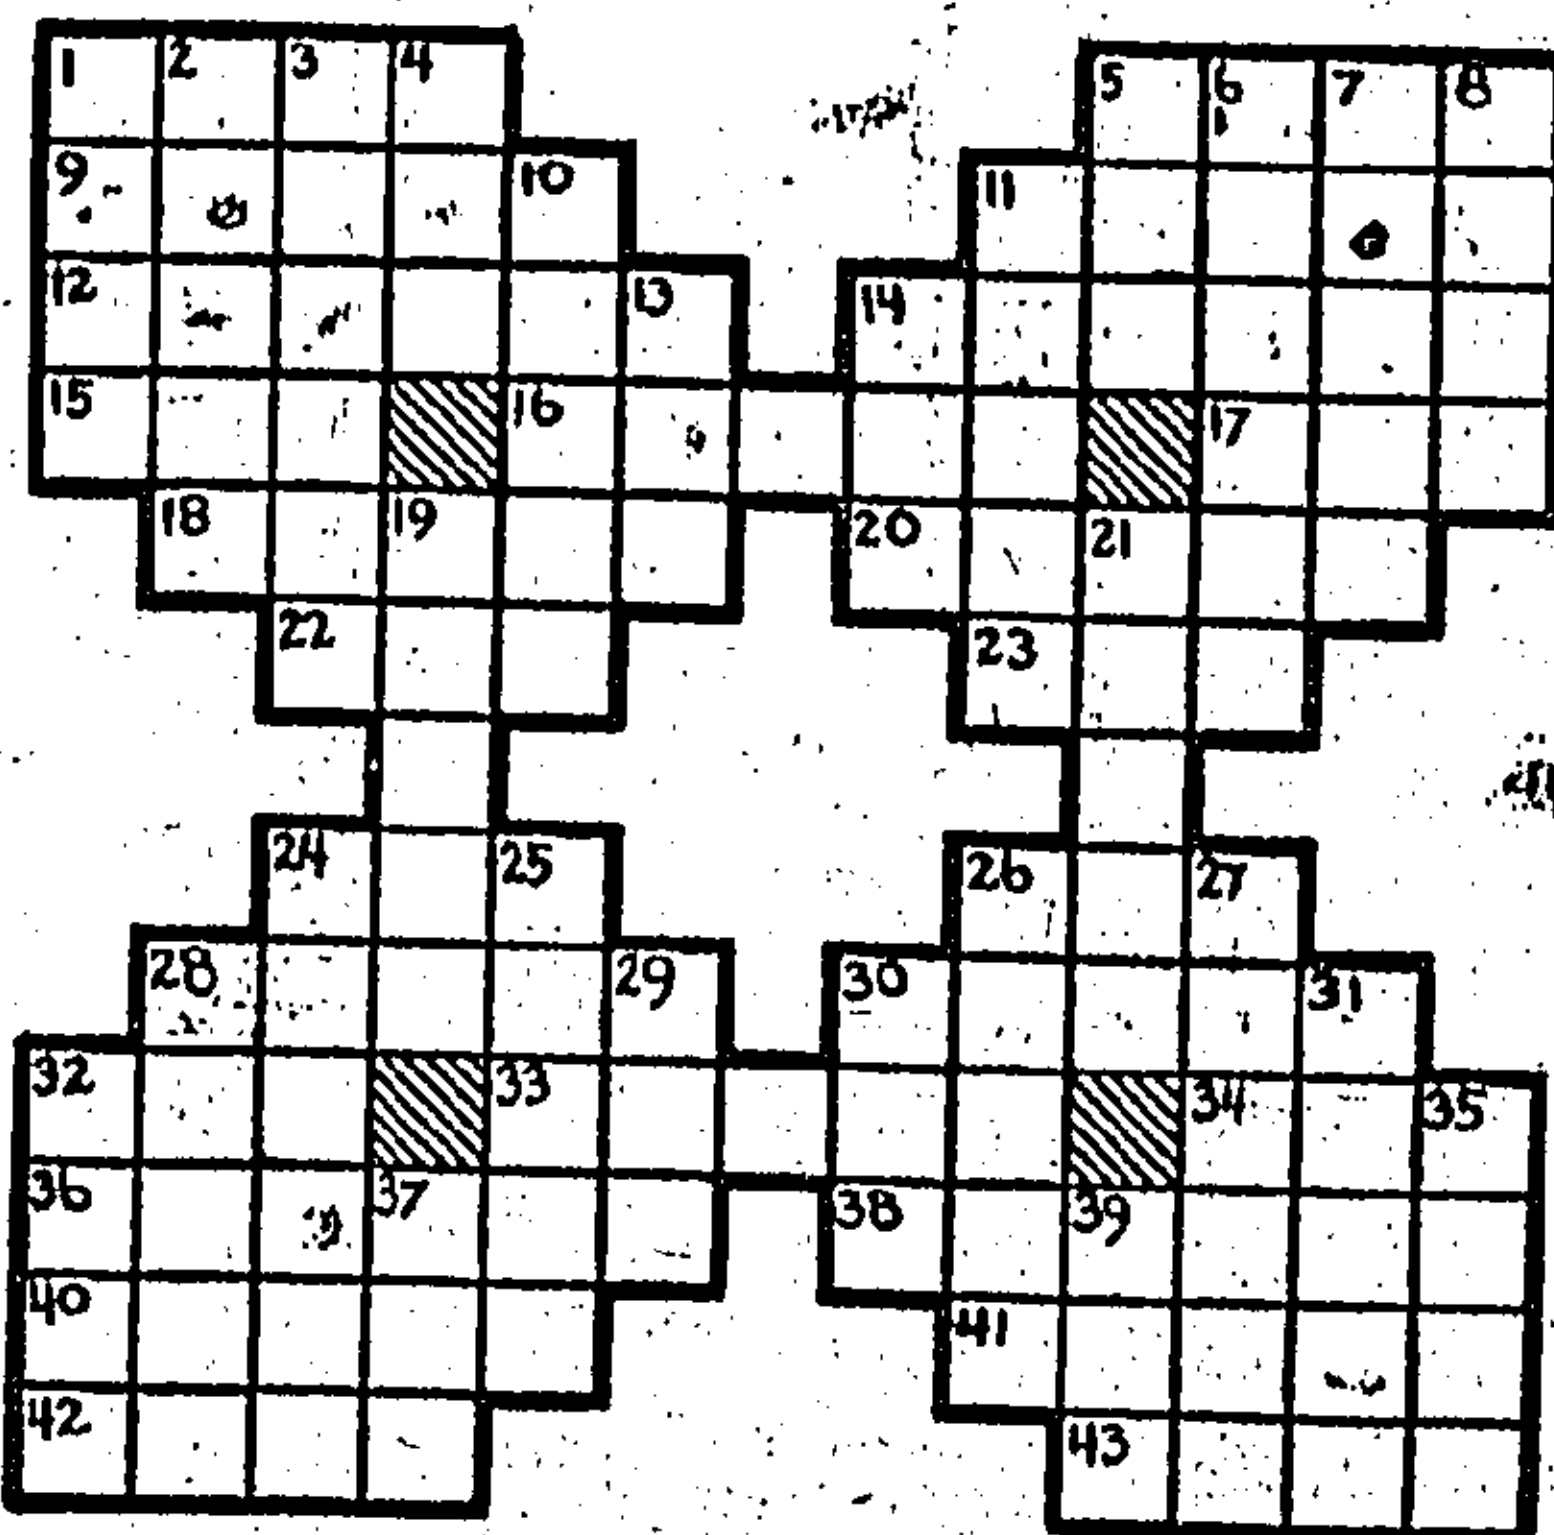

In November, 1919, Mr. Lambert returned to Hong Kong and resumed his position on the railway as Locomotive Superintendent, and in 1923 he was appointed Chief Mechanical Engineer, a post which he has held ever since.

MOHAMMEDAN ABYSSINIANS WILL DEFEND THEIR COUNTRY

PENSIONERS INDUCED TO LEAVE DANZIG

Retrenchment Plan Now Operating

MARIENBURG BECOMES TOWN OVERNIGHT

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Danzig, Yesterday. The great programme of retrenchment and wholesale economy announced by the Senate some weeks ago as essential for the maintenance of the stability of the Danzig guilder has now been put into effect, despite systematic obstruction from the opposition parties.

For instance, a large number of retired State officials who are entitled to pensions partly from Danzig and partly from the Reich, and who draw altogether sums amounting to 16,000,000 guilders, are being induced to leave Danzig and return to the Reich.

Those who do so will receive full pensions in Reichsmarks, irrespective of the depreciation of the Danzig guilder, whereas those who insist on remaining in Danzig will lose their pensions from the Reich because of transfer difficulties and must accept the full disadvantages of the currency depreciation on the Danzig part of their incomes.

The result of the announcement of the necessity for making a choice is that many families are preparing to set up new homes just across the nearby frontier at Marienburg or in East Prussia. In this way the Reich is relieved of certain transfer embarrassments and the Danzig Senate economies, since the full pensions are paid by the Reich.

No compulsion is being exercised and the choice remains open until September 30, but those who choose to return to the Reich will also receive financial assistance to defray the costs of removal.—Trans-Ocean Ocean Service.

ARTISTES' UNIONS DISSOLVED

Berlin Secret Police Take Action

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Berlin, Yesterday. The Secret Police announce that the Reich Chamber of Culture and the State Commissar, Herr Hinkel, have approved of the dissolution of three artists' associations which, despite repeated warnings, persist in harbouring subversive elements. The associations are the International Artists' Lodge in Berlin, the International Circus Directors' Union in Berlin, and the professional Association of German Artists in Berlin.

At the same time the mouthpiece of these organisations, namely, the periodical Das Programm, has been forced to cease publication.—Trans-Ocean Service.

Moslem Leader Dispels All Doubts

FRANCE MAY LOSE ALLY

PRECARIOUS POSITION AT GENEVA

PESSIMISTIC VIEW BY PRESS

FRIENDSHIP WITH ITALY JEOPARDISED

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Paris, Yesterday.

In view of the British, French and Italian Governments' failure to reach a compromise for the peaceable solution of the Abyssinian question, political quarters here now express the expectation that the League of Nations Council will meet at the end of July for discussion of the conflict.

"Pertinax" in the Echo de Paris stresses the precarious position in which France will find herself at Geneva and predicts that, although not wishing to jeopardise her friendship with Italy, France would eventually lose her ally, being unable "to co-operate actively in the destruction of principles which she has so far supported."

The foreign editor of Poeuvre, Madame Tabouis, arrives at similar conclusions. As the French Government's suggestion that Italy herself should bring forward her accusations against Abyssinia in Geneva has been unfavourably received by Rome, nobody will be able to resist the conviction of the League of Nations Council if Abyssinia should demand it, Madame Tabouis warns her readers.—Trans-Ocean Service.

LEAGUE COUNCIL MEETING

Geneva, Yesterday.

The somewhat curiously worded communique issued by the League Secretariat yesterday is interpreted as meaning that the arrangements are now complete for the meeting of the Council, possibly on the 29th or 30th, to consider the whole Italo-Abyssinian problem.

It is anticipated that Abyssinia will raise the questions of Italy's warlike preparations and Italy's action in obtaining from certain Governments an embargo on arms for Abyssinia. It will probably be claimed that there can be no such discrimination against a member of the League, and it is believed that Abyssinia may suggest that the question be submitted to the Hague Court.

On the other hand it is considered probable that Italy will voice her grievances against Abyssinia and make definite charges and suggestions.—Reuter.

CONSIDERABLE SPECULATION

A Trans-Ocean Service message from Geneva states that the preparations being made for the special meeting of the League Council on July 29 to deal with the Abyssinian issue are giving rise to some speculation. It is, however, generally anticipated that the meeting, if it should actually come about, will be of short duration, since the Council will probably content itself with the appointment of a fifth member to the Arbitration Commission, if the four other members should fail to reach agreement as to the selection of the fifth arbitrator.

This procedure has been provided for by the resolution of May 25 and it is expected that the Council will carefully refrain from entering into a discussion on the merits of the case, since the appointment of the fifth arbitrator automatically adjourns the matter until August 25, when the League Council, in accordance with the resolution, will have to re-assemble to examine the situation, provided that settlement by means of conciliation or arbitration has not taken place by then.

This will give the diplomats more time to continue their search for a compromise formula by which war may be prevented.

NEW RAILWAY LINE FOR IRAQ

Country To Be Linked To Europe

76 PER CENT. FOREIGN CAPITAL IN "BRITISH" COMPANY

Bagdad, Yesterday. Iraq will have a new railway line linking her with Europe as the result of an agreement between the Iraq Government and the directors of a company of which Lord Glenconner is chairman.

The railway will be used to convey oil to the Mediterranean, but will also link Bagdad with the Taurus Railway across Asia Minor to Istanbul.

It is noteworthy that though the company is called the British Oil Development Co., a German holds 40 per cent of the share capital, an Italian 36 per cent, and the remainder is divided between British, French and Swiss citizens.—Reuter.

Lord Glenconner is a member of the Tennant family, who have extensive business interests in England. He is 36 years of age and succeeded his father, the first Baron, in 1920.

IMPRESSIVE SCENE IN PARLIAMENT

MANDATE OF ANY POWER WILL BE REFUSED

PROVISIONS MADE FOR SAFETY OF FOREIGNERS

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Addis Ababa, Yesterday.

All provisions have been made for the security of foreigners in Abyssinia in case of the outbreak of war, declared the Emperor in a statement yesterday, renewing the assurance that foreign residents might safely remain in the country.

The Foreign Minister also issues a statement to the effect that the Emperor's speech on Thursday apparently did not make it sufficiently clear that Abyssinia will refuse not only an Italian mandate but a mandate of any foreign Power whatsoever.

An impressive incident marked the conclusion of the Negus's important pronouncement in the densely packed Parliament on Thursday. During the storm of applause which greeted the Emperor's last words: "Your Emperor would rather fight and die with his people than give up his freedom," the leader of the Moslem minority sprang up and spontaneously declared that Haile Selassie's Mohammedan subjects would fight shoulder to shoulder with their Christian fellow countrymen.

This declaration on the part of the Moslem leader is considered here finally to dispose of all the rumours that the Mohammedan Abyssinians would desert in the event of war.

The British Minister had a two hours' conversation with the Foreign Minister yesterday, in the course of which it is stated that taxation questions in the territory bordering the British Somaliland frontier were discussed.—Trans-Ocean Service.

THREE-PARTY TALKS?

Rome, Yesterday.

The Italian papers publish reports from London that Sir Eric Drummond, British Ambassador at Rome, has been instructed to ask the Italian Government if they are prepared to make a documented statement of their case regarding Abyssinia before the League of Nations. Well-informed Italian circles state that so far no such request has been made.

It is understood that the Italian Government has been sounded as to whether it will discuss the question with the French and British Governments on the basis of the 1906 treaty. It is thought that the discussions will be held diplomatically, but a conference is unlikely.

The Italian Government is anxious not to be drawn into any kind of compromise settlement which would not give them military and advisory control of Abyssinia.—Reuter.

70 SUNSTROKE VICTIMS

Another message from Rome states that 70 deaths from sunstroke and the invaliding of some 2,000 labourers from the Italian colonies out of a total of 28,000 are reported by the Azione Coloniale, which is regarded as the semi-official paper for matters concerning the colonies.—Reuter.

RED CROSS AID

A message from Geneva states that in accordance with the suggestion recently made by the International Red Cross Committee, Abyssinia has addressed a letter to the committee declaring her adherence to the Geneva Red Cross Convention, so that the way is now open for the organisation of Red Cross aid in Abyssinia in case of war.—Trans-Ocean Service.

BRITAIN'S PEACE EFFORTS

London, Yesterday.

The British Government continues to be actively engaged, through diplomatic exchanges in Rome and Paris, in its efforts to discover a means for a direct, peaceful settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute.

These efforts will certainly be continued until success is achieved or until the matter comes before the League Council. In the latter event it is hoped that Italy as well as Abyssinia will be prepared to submit a full and complete statement, in order that the Council shall be fully informed upon all the facts in the case.

ANTI-JEWISH OUTBREAKS

Flying Squads Called Out In Berlin

"ERA OF PATIENCE HAS COME TO AN END"

Berlin, Yesterday.

The flying squads were again called out yesterday to deal with fresh anti-Jewish disturbances, resulting in a number of arrests. Crowds paraded the streets shouting: "Down with the Jews!" Supposed Jews were dragged from West-end cafes, while others sought safety in flight. The police, however, kept the crowds moving and dispersed the rioters.

The newspaper Angriff publishes a strong editorial against all the opposition forces, in which it declares that the era of patience and magnanimous attitude has come to an end. The capital of the Reich will be purged with iron of the first of all the opposition elements.—Reuter.

MOB'S DEFENCE OF CURFEW ORDER

The Governor of the Punjab, Sir Herbert Emerson, had arrived at Lahore to take charge of the menacing situation.

The trouble arose in consequence of a dispute regarding a Moslem mosque, which culminated in the Sikhs making an attempt to destroy it.

Infuriated Moslems gathered in force for the purpose of attacking the Sikhs, and the police were compelled to make a baton charge. Aeroplanes were then circling over the city to assist the authorities in locating special danger spots.

A later message said that all was quiet on the night following the rioting. The Royal Scots Guards and the armoured car unit patrolled the city all night long, but only a few precautionary arrests were made.

CONCERT AT RECREIO

Liga Portuguesa Function

LARGE AUDIENCE SHOWS APPRECIATION

A large and appreciative audience attended the opening concert of the season by the Liga Portuguesa of Hong Kong at the Club de Recreio at King's Park last night.

The programme was well varied and at no time did interest flag. The Patron of the Association, whose aims are to raise sufficient money to give the poor Portuguese boys of the Colony a good education, the Portuguese Consul, Sr. Alvaro Brilhante Laborinho, attended the performance, while other prominent members of the Portuguese community present included Mr. Leo D'Almada e Castro, Jr., Dr. B. de Sousa, Captain A. Xavier, Mr. J. Graca, Mr. M. Carvalho, Mr. D. Lopes, Mr. V. Ribeiro and Mr. C. Osmund.

Hawaiian Music

The programme opened "with Hawaiian music played by the popular 'Aloha Serenaders.' This was followed by a song by Sr. Castao D'Aquina.

A one-act comedy, which was written by the President of the Association, Sr. Januario de Almeida followed.

The principal parts in the play were taken by the author, as the mad doctor, Mlle. Lucia Jorge, as his charming wife, Sr. Jose de Almeida, as a shoemaker, Sr. Sebastiao de Pinna, as the doctor's servant, and Sr. Alberto Botelho as a young man in the "eighties."

After an interval during which refreshments were served, the programme was continued with another Hawaiian musical by "The Aloha Serenaders." Miss Margarida Botelho then played a delightful piano solo which completely captivated her audience.

A Second Play

The evening concluded with another play, this time a farce, which was also written by Sr. Januario de Almeida, and this received a rousing reception.

Those who had parts in this play were Sr. Lobato de Faria, Mlle. Lucia Jorge, Sr. Jose de Almeida

LONDON'S AIR DEFENCE

MORE THAN 370 AIRCRAFT TO TAKE PART TO-MORROW

London, Yesterday.

The annual air defence exercises will begin next Monday evening with a raid by day-bombers belonging to the "Southland" forces on London, which will be defended by fighters of the "Northland" forces.

The operations, in which over 370 aircraft—day and night bombers and single-seater and two-seater fighters—will take place, will be carried out in two main phases, the first lasting 14 hours and the second commencing on Tuesday evening and continuing over 60 hours, during which there will be one period of 48 hours continuous exercises.

The daylight raid on Monday will be followed by a night attack, in which the latest types of bombers will be used.

Main Targets in London. All the main targets will be in the London area, since the exercises, as in former years, are concerned with the problem of the air defence of the capital.

The ground organisation of the defence, which will include anti-aircraft batteries, searchlights and sound detecting apparatus, will be strengthened by territorial units.

Under arrangements announced on June 15 last eight London battalions of the territorial army have agreed to their conversion into anti-aircraft defence units.—British Wireless Service.

CROSSING THE ALPS BY ELEPHANT

American Writer's Enterprise

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

The elephant which is to assume the leading role in the attempt of the American novelist Richard Halliburton to emulate Hannibal by crossing the Alps on top of a pachyderm, arrived yesterday at Martigny at the base of the Great St. Bernard Pass, from where Halliburton intends to set out on his adventurous journey.

Since the Italian and Swiss authorities have granted the enterprising American a free passage, Halliburton intends to leave Martigny with his elephant today or to-morrow, proceeding by easy stages across the Alps to Pisa and finally to Rome, the trip taking probably 35 days, if all goes well.—Trans-Ocean Service.

GERMANY'S SECOND FINAL

Germany first entered the Davis Cup series in 1913, beating France in the First Round by 4 matches to 1, but losing in the next round to America by 5 matches to nil. In 1928 Germany reached the Third Round only to lose to England at Edgbaston by 4 matches to 1. In the following year, however, the German team reversed the decision in the Final of the European Zone, but lost to America in the Inter-Zone final by five matches to love.

GERMAN-ASIATIC BANK REPORT

Business Influenced By Depression

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Berlin, Yesterday.

The annual report and profit and loss account submitted to a board meeting of the German-Asiatic Bank showed that the continued world depression and the prevailing currency difficulties had adversely influenced the extent of the bank's business in the past year.

The profit amounted to 41,616 yuan, out of which the statutory dividends on the preference shares will be paid. The balance will be carried forward, so that again no dividends will be forthcoming on the ordinary shares.

The general meeting has been convoked for September 6.—Trans-Ocean Service.

BEAUTY OF WOMEN LEGENDARY FAME OF CHINA'S LOVELIEST STORY OF YANG KUEI-FEI AND THE EMPEROR

(By Phyllis Juby)

SINCE the dawn of time, the beauty of woman has fed the fires of ambition. And in the whole history of China no woman has been so universally acclaimed as Yang Kuei-fei, the loveliest woman of the Tang Dynasty. The Tang Dynasty, too, had reached its artistic zenith at this time, when the Emperor Ming Huang, himself a poet and musician of no mean ability, surrounded himself with a brilliant court of poets, artists and beautiful women. He welcomed such men as the poet Li Po, at first for their talents alone, but afterwards for their readiness to join in the entertainments and revelry provided for the amusement of the Imperial concubine, the ever-famous Yang Kuei-fei. But Ming Huang's infatuation for Yang Kuei-fei proved to be his greatest folly, bringing ruin not only on himself but also on his whole empire.

Portents

The parents of Yang Kuei-fei were said to have experienced a strange vision the night she was born. They saw a brilliant meteor moving slowly down from the sky amidst rainbow-coloured lights which shone around their bed. The meteor finally struck earth with a thunderous noise. This delighted the father, who exclaimed: "When a girl is born with such a good omen, she is destined some day to become an empress; if not, she will at least attain a very high position."

Thus Yang Kuei-fei grew from childhood with the idea that she was no common person, but destined some day to be highly favoured at court. A talented child, she was given the best education possible and every advantage was afforded her to further her ambitions. At the age of sixteen she had mastered the Five Classics and Chinese history. Always exceptionally alert and skilful, she easily excelled each of her three sisters. She took special interest in singing and in playing musical instruments, as well as in the art of dancing. She composed verses and was, indeed, well prepared for any high position she might attain in the future.

A Prince's Choice

At length Kuei-fei's uncle heard the news that Ming Huang was about to select a wife for his young son Prince Shou. He used his influence to spread the fame of her attractions so that she might be chosen for this exalted position. The plan was successful—Kuei-fei was chosen and at the age of sixteen she entered the palace. Her exquisite beauty fascinated the young prince and she was soon firmly established as his favourite. But still she was not satisfied.

Three years passed and once again it was Spring. The courtyard was filled with the fragrance of flowers, crystal streams twined beneath the tall poplars and the weeping willows. The lakes were surrounded by peach and pear trees in full bloom, while white swans and ducks and gaily coloured fish sported in the water. Through the rows of red lacquered pillars and the doors brilliantly painted crimson His Majesty's private chambers could be seen. Couches decorated with gold lace and inlaid with jade and pearls, silk embroidered curtains set with precious gems, green and white jade carvings...and groups of maidens dressed in rich flowing robes, with ornaments in their hair and long silken tassels falling over their skirts sang and danced while the music played.

J-fatuated Emperor

At this time the Emperor's favourite was the beautiful Mei-fei; but her quiet and modest disposition could not long satisfy the Emperor's whims. A scheming courtier, contrived to introduce Kuei-fei to the court of the Emperor. She was brought before him on an evening when the palace was illuminated with lanterns. The Emperor cast one glance at this fairest of women and at once became enamoured of her. It would not have been proper to claim her right away, so she was sent to retire as a nun on probation. She was soon recalled, however, and welcomed with every possible pomp and grandeur. Soon she succeeded in fascinating the Emperor to such an extent that he began to neglect his duties to the nation. Her sprightly wit and humour soon triumphed, too, over the more delicate charm of Mei-fei, and Mei-fei was removed to a lonely part of the palace where she was doomed to spend the rest of her life.

An Lu-shan, a youth of Tartar descent, was now introduced to court. The Emperor took a fancy to him, not recognising his crafty disposition, and made him a favourite courtier. Kuei-fei and An Lu-shan took an instantaneous liking to each other and she laughingly called him her son. The liking developed into love, however, and it is recorded that everyone at court knew of their intimacy. Only the Emperor in his blind devotion noticed nothing. As An Lu-shan grew in favour with Kuei-fei his arrogance and conceit increased. Eventually he was offered a high position in a distant state and left the court. Kuei-fei, still secure in the increasing love of the sovereign, kept him practically under her thumb.

Queen Of Flowers

One lovely Spring day a royal feast was held in the Pavilion of Aloes. A large collection of peony flowers had been sent as a tribute from the South, and as the Emperor and his favourites were admiring the lovely blooms, she exclaimed, "These fragrant flowers are indeed pleasing to your Majesty's eyes." The Emperor replied, "Fragrant indeed are these flowers, but my beloved is above all as the queen of speaking flowers."

Soon Li Po was summoned, for only his art could capture for eternity the glory of these hours. The poet was in a state of intoxication, so the court attendants threw cold water in his face and handed him a writing brush; he then improvised three beautiful songs in rapturous praise of Kuei-fei and the Emperor himself played the tune upon a flute of jade.

But Li Po was not forever to enjoy the sumptuous luxury of the life at court. He made an enemy of Kuei-fei by a satirical reference to her in one of his verses. Through her influence he was degraded and banished to a desolate region beyond the "Five Streams," the region of Yaokuai, the man-eating devils.

The charm of Kuei-fei made ever more impression on Ming Huang, until with music, wine and dancing the hours of each day slipped gaily away. A famous summer resort was built for her pleasure. There were bridges, artificial hillocks, pagodas, carved marble tables and chairs, running streams, and everywhere rare flowers and trees. Musicians and dancing girls followed them wherever they desired, and thus the day was turned into night and the night into day. On the festival of the Spinning Damsel and the Herdsman they swore eternal love—in the words of a poet:

"I swear that we will ever fly like the one-winged birds,
Or grow united like the tree with branches which twine together."

And then the musicians played "Rainbow Skirt and Feather Jacket" which Kuei-fei had composed herself, while, clad in rainbow-coloured garments, she danced.

The End Of The Chapter

But meanwhile An Lu-shan was plotting to overthrow the kingdom, that he alone might possess Kuei-fei. A rebellion was started at the outpost of Yu Chow, while the Emperor, who had long since ceased to occupy himself with affairs of state, had to flee from the capital and abdicate. The soldiers demanded the life of Yang Kuei-fei. She was allowed to pay one last tribute to Buddha and then to claim her right away, so she was

IMPORTANCE OF ADVERTISING IN DEPRESSION

Appeal For Better Understanding

A. P. B. EXPANSION

An appeal for a better realisation of the importance of advertising was made by Mr. C. J. Church, Managing Director of the Advertising and Publicity Bureau, Limited, at the official opening of the A.P.B.'s Office and Studio in Queen's Building last Monday.

Among the more distinguished guests present were the Hon. Mr. J. J. Patterson, the Hon. Dr. R. H. Kotowall, Major V. E. Duclos, and Messrs. P. S. Cassidy, R. D. Walker, W. J. Carrie, S. H. Dodwell, Ma Man Fai, A. Raymond, E. M. Hamilton, C. Champkin, J. F. Macgregor, Addis Martin, R. Ohl, A. L. Downie, F. G. Maundrell, E. W. G. Malcolm, and L. E. Gourley, the American Vice-Consul.

Mr. Church's Speech

In welcoming the guests, Mr. C. J. Church said: "We, the Directors, Executives and Staff of the A.P.B., are greatly honoured by your presence here to-day. The occasion, as you know, is the opening of our new offices and it also marks the beginning of our thirteenth year, as it is just 13 years ago that we started in one room—No. 13—in Alexandra Buildings."

"We also felt that it would be an excellent opportunity to invite you gentlemen who are primarily concerned with the business and trade of Hong Kong—either directly or indirectly—to see something at first hand of an organisation specialising in creating a demand for goods, the import and distribution of which is the backbone of Hong Kong commerce."

"We know that we have some times been looked upon as mere disturbers of the peace, or as people who take a delight in butting in on other people's business. We believe that idea is largely due to a misconception of the part that advertising has to play in modern business, and also of what this organisation really stands for."

Resisting The Depression

"As regards advertising, may I read what Sir John Pybus said at his Presidential address at the opening of the Annual Advertising Convention in England last month: "Those of you who follow the company meeting reports in the newspapers must have been impressed, as I have been, by the power of resistance which in general those companies who advertise have shown to the depression, and the rapidity with which their sales have turned upward again."

threatening she hanged herself. A story is told that after her death the Emperor longed for her so greatly that he could neither eat nor sleep. So one day he summoned a magician who could call up the spirits of the departed. That very evening he recited his magic incantations, and his soul left his body to go in search of Yang Kuei-fei. First he went to the nether world, but there was no trace of her; then he ascended the highest heaven, but she was not to be found there either. He returned and told the Emperor what had occurred. "Yang Kuei-fei's beauty was divine," exclaimed the disheartened Emperor; "How can it be possible that she has no soul?"

Undying Beauty

The magician answered: "Between hill and valley and amid the silent ravines dwell the blessed. I will go back once more and search for her there." So he wandered about on the holy hills, by the four great seas, and through the islands of the sea. At last he came to fairyland. And there in the great south palace he came upon Kuei-fei seated on a throne, adorned with an emerald headdress and furs of yellow swansdown. Her face was more beautiful than ever, her forehead was wrinkled with care.

"Well I know," she exclaimed, "that the Emperor longs for me. But for me there is no path leading back to the world of men: Take back to him this half of the ring we shared the day we swore eternal love, and tell him not to forget the words we said to each other. He must not grieve too greatly because of me."

WILLYS - OVERLAND SUCCESES

Four-Cylinder Unit's Fine Performance

THREE NEW CLUB RECORDS
ESTABLISHED

An American-made car, the Willys 77, led the field in open competition for a whole year in successive tests of reliability and speed conducted by the Royal Automobile Club of Australia, and in other trials, according to figures recently received.

The Willys captured 19 first and five second-place victories, to establish what the Royal Club officials declare to be the most sensational series of motor-car test accomplishments in the history of Australia. The events, held during 10 months of 1934 and in which both American and European-made automobiles took part, included reliability, acceleration, hill-climbing and speed, and in three instances the Willys entry established new Club records.

This record of four-cylinder performance had its counterpart on May 30 in the annual speed classic at Indianapolis, when the first four cars to finish were four-cylinder entries, the second consecutive year for such motors in a one-two-three-four position finish, and giving the four-cylinder power plants outstanding triumphs both abroad and in America.

PAINTING PLANT FOR HUMBERS

Improved Methods Of Enamelling

CONVEYOR SYSTEM IN USE

A notable addition to the equipment of the Humber and Hillman factory at Coventry is the extensive new painting and enamelling plant which has just been completed. Modelled on lines which are considerably in advance of current practice, the conveyor system has been laid out with extreme skill. Articles such as bonnets, wings, luggage grids, valances, etc., etc., can be completely finished without having to be taken from the conveyor.

Once placed in position on it, they pass through the various operations of degreasing, and priming, and are then given the requisite number of undercoats and colour. Road wheels especially benefit, as they can be enamelled in colour. Colour enamel is baked on at high temperature, and is therefore much harder than cellulose, and consequently able to withstand usage under modern road conditions.

The plant is laid out to deal with all parts of the car, other than the body, which require colour finish. With the modern car the painting of these parts in a large range of colours represents greater manufacturing difficulties than the painting of the body itself. Always renowned for excellence of finish, Humber and Hillman cars are now to be, if possible, better in this respect thanks to the new equipment.

COMFORT FOR HOT WEATHER DRIVING

Refinements On
New Ford V-8

SPECIAL VENTILATING SYSTEM

Refinements in the new Ford V-8 cars make summer driving unusually comfortable. The Ford body ventilating system is one of the principal comfort factors in hot weather. This combines an adjustable windshield operated by a single control, a large screened cowl ventilator and the window ventilating system.

For All Weathers In scorching weather, the windows, windshield and cowl ventilator all may be opened, allowing a large volume of air to flow through the car. In ordinary weather, the cowl ventilator may be opened. On chilly evenings or when rain is falling, the cowl ventilator may be closed and the window ventilating slots opened. Through these vents air is gently exhausted from the interior, providing adequate ventilation without drafts.

The new "directed flow" engine ventilation system promotes cool engine operation under the most difficult summer heat conditions. A stream of air from the engine fan is caught in a scoop, directed down through a duct into the crankcase, upward into the valve chamber and then out through a vent. It carries away with it water and other vapour, and tends to cool the engine oil and prevent oil deterioration in high-speed summer operation.

THE "TEMPOMETER"

Dial Tells Distance
And Advises Speed

A new invention, hailing from Germany might have devastating effects on Britain's already chaotic traffic conditions if fitted extensively to business men's cars.

The "Tempometer," as the new apparatus is called, consists of two dials. One dial shows the distance to be covered and the time in hand, the other dial shows the speed at which the motorist should be driving to arrive at his destination in time. This should be conducive to more nerve storms in traffic blocks!

INBUILT JACKING SYSTEM

Feature Of New Morris
12.4 Car

An outstanding feature of the new Morris 12.4 is its Smith's Jackall inbuilt hydraulic jacking system. Operation is effected from within the car without effort or difficulty, and enables all four wheels to be lifted from the ground simultaneously or, alternatively, the two front wheels or two back wheels only. The advantages of this system are too obvious to need reiteration, but will make a great appeal to the owner driver.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

MAKE IT PLAIN TO YOUR PARTNER

(By Lt.-Col. H. M. BEASLEY)

CONFUSION often arises between partners over bids which may have a dual meaning. One or the other makes a bid which leaves a doubt in the partner's mind as to its purport.

It is always just as well for a player before making a bid to ask himself two questions:

(a) Is my bid correct and sound?

(b) Will my partner understand the purport of my bid, or will it create any doubt and confusion in his mind?

I was recently asked: "If I make an overall in a suit which has previously been bid by one of my opponents; does it mean that I hold no losing tricks in the suit (singleton, ace, or void), or does it merely signify that I can take the first trick in the suit (ace, with one or two small ones)?"

The query involves many important points:

First, an overall in the suit bid by the opponents has two distinct meanings, depending entirely on what stage of the calling the overall has been made at.

My correspondent does not state whether the overall was an immediate overall in the suit bid by the opponents or whether it was made after there had been one or more rounds of bidding.

There is a sharp distinction between the two bids:

(A) An overall in the suit bid by the opponent, if made at an early stage of the bidding, indicates:

(a) That you hold a strong hand, with probabilities of game if the suit can be found, which fits the combined hands.

(b) The bid in itself indicates:
(1) A void in the suit, or
(2) The ace-single, or
(3) The ace and a small card.

In any case the control of the first round of the suit is guaranteed.

Herewith two examples of the above:

North bids One Heart.

You, East, may hold A or B; either hand certainly holds out possibilities of game. You, therefore, are justified in making an immediate overall of Two Hearts.

A B
S—A J 10 7 S—A J 10 7
H—Nil H—A x
D—K Q 10 9 4 D—K Q 10 9 4
C—A Q 9 4 C—K 9

(B) An overall made in the higher stages of the bidding is in reality a cue bid indicating no losing trick in the suit (ace, or ace king, or void), and is a slam invitation.

As a matter of fact, a situation of this nature does not frequently arise, as the opponents are not likely to indulge in any bidding if you or your partner hold a slam hand between you. This situation may arise if there are freak hands. In this event it is quite possible that one of your opponents may make an intervening bid of a psychic or bluff order, with the express object of deterring you from bidding a slam.

For example, the bidding may be as follows:

Round. N. E. S. W.
1st ... 1 H 1 S 3 D No bid
2nd ... 5 D No bid 5 S No bid
3rd ... 6 D No bid 6 H No bid
4th ... No bid No bid

The hand may have been as follows:

Importance Of Advertising In Depression

"A comparison in these respects of the records of the advertising with those of the non-advertising companies would, I am sure, be very instructive."

"Much as advertising has achieved, there is still immense scope for the individual advertiser. We are moving into a period of greater prosperity, when the public will have more money to spend and more leisure, and better opportunities to develop a high standard of living."

"Now as regards this organization, you have perhaps been around the various departments, and I hope this has left an impression of what advertising really entails."

Hong Kong Backward

"Speaking quite frankly, Hong Kong is very backward in its realization of the part advertising plays in modern life. It is regarded far too much as a mere or less necessary evil which has to be carried out but is left entirely to any member of the staff who has some spare time on his hands, or who can persuade his chief he has a flair for drawing—and therefore knows all about advertising."

"Gentlemen, this is all wrong, and unless we get a clear conception of what advertising does, and how it can be made to work for you and increase your profits when it is properly applied to the problems of distributing and selling what you import from abroad, then the only people who are benefiting from your imports will be the go-down companies who will store your goods, and the auctioneers who will auction them for you when you can't sell them otherwise."

The A. P. R. Aims
"Without carefully planned advertising and marketing your imports cannot reach the consumers in any quantity, for the simple reason—

After the five diamond bid by North, South sees that a slam is probable, and makes an overall in the suit bid by the opponents, indicating no losing trick in that suit.

North, of course, then bids six diamonds, South then bids six hearts, and invites North to call the Grand Slam in diamonds should his hand justify such action.

Here is an instance of how confusion may arise between partners when cue bidding is employed. This particular hand was played in the final round of a duplicate match for the Portland Club Cup between the Devonshire Club and Almack's. Here is the hand, North is the dealer and the bidding was as under:

The six diamond bid by South was a cue bid to indicate the control of the diamond suit. As South had, up to this point, only bid spades and No Trumps and had failed to support the heart suit bid by North, North evidently came to the conclusion that South's hand was a two-suiter consisting of spades and diamonds, and left South in to play the hand in diamonds, where a Grand Slam in hearts is possible.

son that consumers, a great portion of whom are in the interior, will never hear of them and therefore will not demand them.

"To find out if and where a demand for your imports can be created, to stimulate that demand and to aid in distributing your goods where the demand has been created, is the sole purpose of the A.P.B.

"Not only is expert knowledge needed in creating a demand for goods: it is equally indispensable in selling an idea."

"For instance, Hong Kong is about to try and sell herself and her attractions abroad. To the uninitiated it may appear a simple matter to keep on reiterating: 'Come to Hong Kong, the Pearl of the Orient,' etc. But advertising has to do much more than that: it has to arouse attention and interest, to create a desire to come here, to ensure remembrance of the sales story of Hong Kong, and finally to compel the reader of the advertisements to take action. Now, perhaps, it is clear why we say that it needs a staff of experts to carry out advertising if—and that is a big if—the money spent on it is to be justified by results—which is the only criterion of success."

Money Thrown Away

"You have met this morning members of this firm who are each in their own line experts in carrying out the purpose for which the A.P.B. exists."

"You will, we feel sure, realise that no one import firm with their comparatively small volume of imports could possibly carry their own staff of experts to look after their advertising—and yet without that expert knowledge of where and how to sell, money spent on advertising is thrown away."

"Most of you present here today probably read a speech at a local company's meeting very recently, presided over by one of the leaders in business of Hong Kong. May I recall these remarks on this occasion: 'The Colony is getting it in the neck from almost every quarter. She is too small to hit back and in consequence her citizens and her industries are passing through very critical times—times indeed in which I feel that we should all stand together.'"

Helping General Recovery

"To this quotation I would link one more from Sir John Pybus' speech already referred to:

"Those industries and those individuals who have adapted themselves to the new technique of salesmanship are not only establishing their own success on a firm basis, but are also helping along the road to general recovery."

"The public is learning to trust advertising, and the public should know that advertising men are striving to deserve that trust."

"In conclusion, gentlemen, we would like you to carry away the thought that we are here to co-operate with every firm in Hong Kong or abroad who has goods to sell in South China or Malaya. We wish to co-operate and we hope that you, on your side, will allow us to do so. We feel sure from our past experience, where we have worked in close co-operation with manufacturers abroad and their local agents, that we can fill a very definite niche in the organisation of importers here and if these past experiences are anything to go by, we are sure that this co-operation will result in increased sales for your imports."

PARTED BY DEATH

Twin Brothers Aged 89 Years

Wilberforce (Australia).

Death has separated the 89-year-old twins, Ralph and William Turnbull, who have lived at Wilberforce since their birth.

Ralph, the dead man, leaves a widow aged 85, seven daughters and one son. The eldest daughter is about 60.

The twin brothers never at any time lived more than a mile from each other. Both were retired farmers.

Until a few years ago they were so alike that it was difficult to tell them apart. The Turnbulls had twin nephews, now aged 56, and twin great-grandsons, aged 9.

JAPAN SUSPICIOUS OF CHIANG

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, Yesterday.

Mr. Hu Han-min, veteran statesman and leader of the official opposition within the Kuomintang, will shortly go to London from his retreat in Switzerland for the purpose of discussing with British officials the question of Anglo-Chinese co-operation.

There is a possibility that Mr. Hu will return to China to accept an important post with the Nanking Government; it is thought probable that he will become President of the Executive Yuan (equivalent to Prime Minister).

With a new Government in England, Mr. Hu expects that the Baldwin Cabinet will take a greater interest in developments in this country and indicate to Japan that she should respect the political independence and territorial integrity of China.

Later on Mr. Hu will proceed to the United States on a similar mission. Mr. Hu will not accept the presidency of the Executive Yuan if he has to go on submitting to Japanese pressure as Mr. Wang Ching-wei has been doing for the past three years.

Government Action Unlikely

POOL IN DIFFICULTIES

London, Yesterday. Rumours are current in the City that the Government will be asked to impose a heavy import duty on pepper, thus enabling the pepper pool, which took up 20,000 tons during the pepper and shellac troubles, to dispose of its holdings. It is understood that the stock of the pool is at present 18,000 tons. It is considered most unlikely that the Government will take action. It is pointed out that pepper is now most difficult to sell in London, which is probably the result of new supplies being shipped elsewhere.—Reuter.

POLICE TAKE SEVERE PRECAUTIONS

GARDE MOBILE HELPS TO KEEP ORDER

12,000 PARTICIPANTS ARRESTED FOR ONE NIGHT

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Paris, Yesterday.

The protest demonstrations against the decree laws held by civil servants and pensioners yesterday afternoon passed off without serious incidents owing to the thorough precautionary measures taken by the authorities, though the police were forced to arrest some 1,200 demonstrators, the majority of whom, however, were released during the night.

From the early afternoon a large police force, reinforced by "Garde Mobile" detachments on foot and on horseback, took up positions in and near the Place de l'Opera and other important traffic centres. Shortly after six o'clock a small group of malcontents began to form in the streets leading to the Place de l'Opera behind the police barrage.

These rapidly increased to a dense wall of shouting and singing demonstrators, who, however, were admirably handled by the police, who showed perfect discipline and great determination.

Detachments of the steel-helmeted "Garde Mobile" gradually drove back the demonstrators and dispersed them without using their batons or other arms. Uniformed police and plainclothes men from time to time seized the noisiest demonstrators and took them to patrol cars standing in readiness.

A number of demonstrators attempting to erect a barricade in the Boulevard Haussmann before the famous department store Galeries Lafayette were driven off by a mounted detachment of the "Garde Mobile," which quickly dispersed the crowd there without meeting resistance. By 8 o'clock the streets of the capital had been cleared, and spasmodic attempts to resume the demonstration were quickly prevented by energetic police action.

MAJORITY COMMUNISTS

The total number of demonstrators in the central part of the city was estimated at between 15 and 20 thousand, the majority of whom were Communists.

The demonstration may have serious consequences for civil service employees caught in the act of participation, since the Government signified its intention of applying the most rigorous measures against those disobeying the edict prohibiting open-air manifestations.—Trans-Ocean Service.

INTERNATIONALE SONG

An earlier Reuter message yesterday stated that a demonstration of thousands of civil servants in the neighbourhood of the Place de l'Opera against the pay cuts ended at 8.10 p.m. on Friday evening without any grave incident, but 500 arrests were made by the police, 6,000 of which, mounted and on foot, were on duty.

A later message stated that the demonstrators sang the Internationale and shouted Communist slogans. Traffic was temporarily held up, and order was restored only after repeated police charges.—Reuter.

CANTON'S RELATIONS WITH NORTH

Important Problems Discussed

BY "ANTHONY EDEN" OF THE SOUTH

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Canton, Yesterday.

Known as the "Anthony Eden" of the South-west regime, Mr. Sun Chia-che (Sun Ka-chit) is on his way back to Canton from Chengtu, where he interviewed General Chiang Kaishek, Chairman of the Military Affairs Commission, concerning Canton-Nanking relations, according to Chinese newspapers to-day.

It is not stated whether the mission to Szechuen was successful or not, as General Chiang is said to have taken a certain stand with respect to internal politics as advised by Mr. Yang Wing-tai, the secretary-general of his Chengtu field headquarters. Being a Cantonese, Yang knows the conditions here very well. At one time he was civil governor of Kwangtung and supporter of the old Kwangsi military clique.

Mr. Sun is a versatile politician. He is the director of the Consolidated Tax Bureau for Kwangtung, Kwangai and Fukien, with its head office in Canton, while he is also a member of the Fukien Provincial Government at Fochow. He was offered the Commissionership of Finance, but it is not known whether he has accepted it or not.

With the return of Generals Yu Han-mou and Li Yang-king from their garrison posts, they were guests last evening at a dinner in the home of General Chen Chitang, their superior officer. Important military and political problems were discussed.
